Enough Said.

Communication, since the start of history, has occurred through a medium of speech, whether spoken or written. Hopefully, this book will be able to communicate to the reader through its words and pictures the true spirit of St. Patrick High School.

Throughout the year, the spirit of St. Patrick has undergone highs and lows. Even though laws did exist, they didn't last long as new and exciting events catapulted our Shamrock spirit to new heights. These events were as widespread and varied as the feelings of victory vicariously experienced from the football and basketball teams to the video dance, which kicked off spirit week.

But enough said about that, this year was also one of transition. The state legislature legalized "Las Vegas Nights" and the school happily welcomed back its finest and grandest fundraiser. In addition, a large group of new teachers joined the faculty, injecting it with interesting ideas and a new sense of purpose.

Finally, the theme of this book, "Enough Said," should be self-evident in the following pages. They are, in other words, a testimony to the fact that the memories created by the school year eliminate the need for a lot of words or wordy article to relive those memories.

Can't Get Enough

As the school year rambles along, one needs that added incentive to continue. Various activities throughout the year provide the boost to keep students partially satisfied. But like potato chips, they just can't get enough. Student life reflects the many forms of spirit and enthusiasm displayed during the year.

Lively affairs such as dances, carnivals, and sporting events, let students outwardly express their emotions. In addition, masses and retreats gave them the necessary time to help them look inside themselves. School spirit plays an important part in a high school student's life and with an ever-increasing emphasis on academics, students just can't get enough.

An eventful week gives meaning to a devastating Shamrock victory

Homecoming week brought out the spirit in all, with many new, as well as traditional events. Carnival Day gave students the chance to let out all their frustrations. The dunk tank attracted the most attention. Guests included Br. Konrad and Miss Lee. Some students ate hot dogs and drank pop while others ate watermelons. Homerooms competed against each other in several events such as the egg-toss, the football throw, and the watermelon eating contest. The ever popular Mongo Ball presented itself as different grade levels tried desperately to push the monstrosity across the field. New additions to the agenda included the ultimate test of strength — the "Bell Ringer." Students displayed their physical prowess by ringing the bell with a mallet to win a prize. Students and faculty rendered impersonations of rival students in "Dress like a Crusader Day." Outrageous individuals even wore dresses for the occasion.

The day of the game, a pep rally was held in the gym to add incentive and encouragement to the mighty football team. The cheerleading squad gave another fine performance as did some of our seniors who dressed up as Holy Cross cheerleaders. As part of the large turnout, many students at the game shared in the devastating victory of 47-3 over the Crusaders. This year, the traditional homecoming dance was changed to a semi-formal occasion in which couples danced the night away. The dance capped-off the week of fun and festivities.

Enthusiasm soars as students enjoy Spirit Week

To boost students' enthusiasm toward the end of the school year, Spirit Week was instated. With the end of the third quarter, students who were given time to relax let loose. The week began with Hard Hat Day. Helmets and hats of various types were donned by some students throughout the day. Wheel of Fortune Day followed. Teachers were each given a letter to part of a puzzle. Students roamed incessantly through the halls asking teachers for letters. As luck would have it, the puzzle was solved — not by one individual — but by the entire student body.

Homerooms competed in the annual Tug-O-War contest. With preliminaries taking place during the week, championship matches were determined. The tough competition ended with only the fittest surviving. This was also a day for recognition of the Varsity teams for both fall and spring sports. Certain individuals were also recognized for their personal achievements. Ending the week was the first annual Faculty vs. Students volleyball game, which consisted of four separate contests against squads from each grade level. The Faculty crushed the freshmen and the sophomores. The juniors won their game, but the faculty just got by the seniors. This new added twist gave students and faculty members an even chance of winning. This event marked the end of an exciting week and the beginning of a new quarter.

A New Tradition Begins

As Popular Music Replaces Customary Hymns

Throughout the year, liturgies for the student and faculty were held in the gym. Some of the more special masses included the Thanksgiving Mass, the Back-to-School Mass, and the famed Junior Ring Mass. In these masses students participated in the readings, served as altar boys and brought up the gifts. This practice helped in making students feel more involved in the mass and also in making it a more meaningful experience. The major purpose of the masses was to help the students fulfill their obligations as Catholics.

Although the masses did not win any popularity contests, students did tend to enjoy the shortened class periods over the basic concept of the mass. However, to correct this problem, popular music picked by the students replaced the traditional hymns of the old days. In the end, the liturgy program strengthened itself by adopting small changes to make the services interesting, as well as an important part of the learning experience for students.

During one of the masses throughout the course of the year, a guest priest prepares to administer communion.

Br. Konrad congratulates Robert Berres as he receives his class ring.

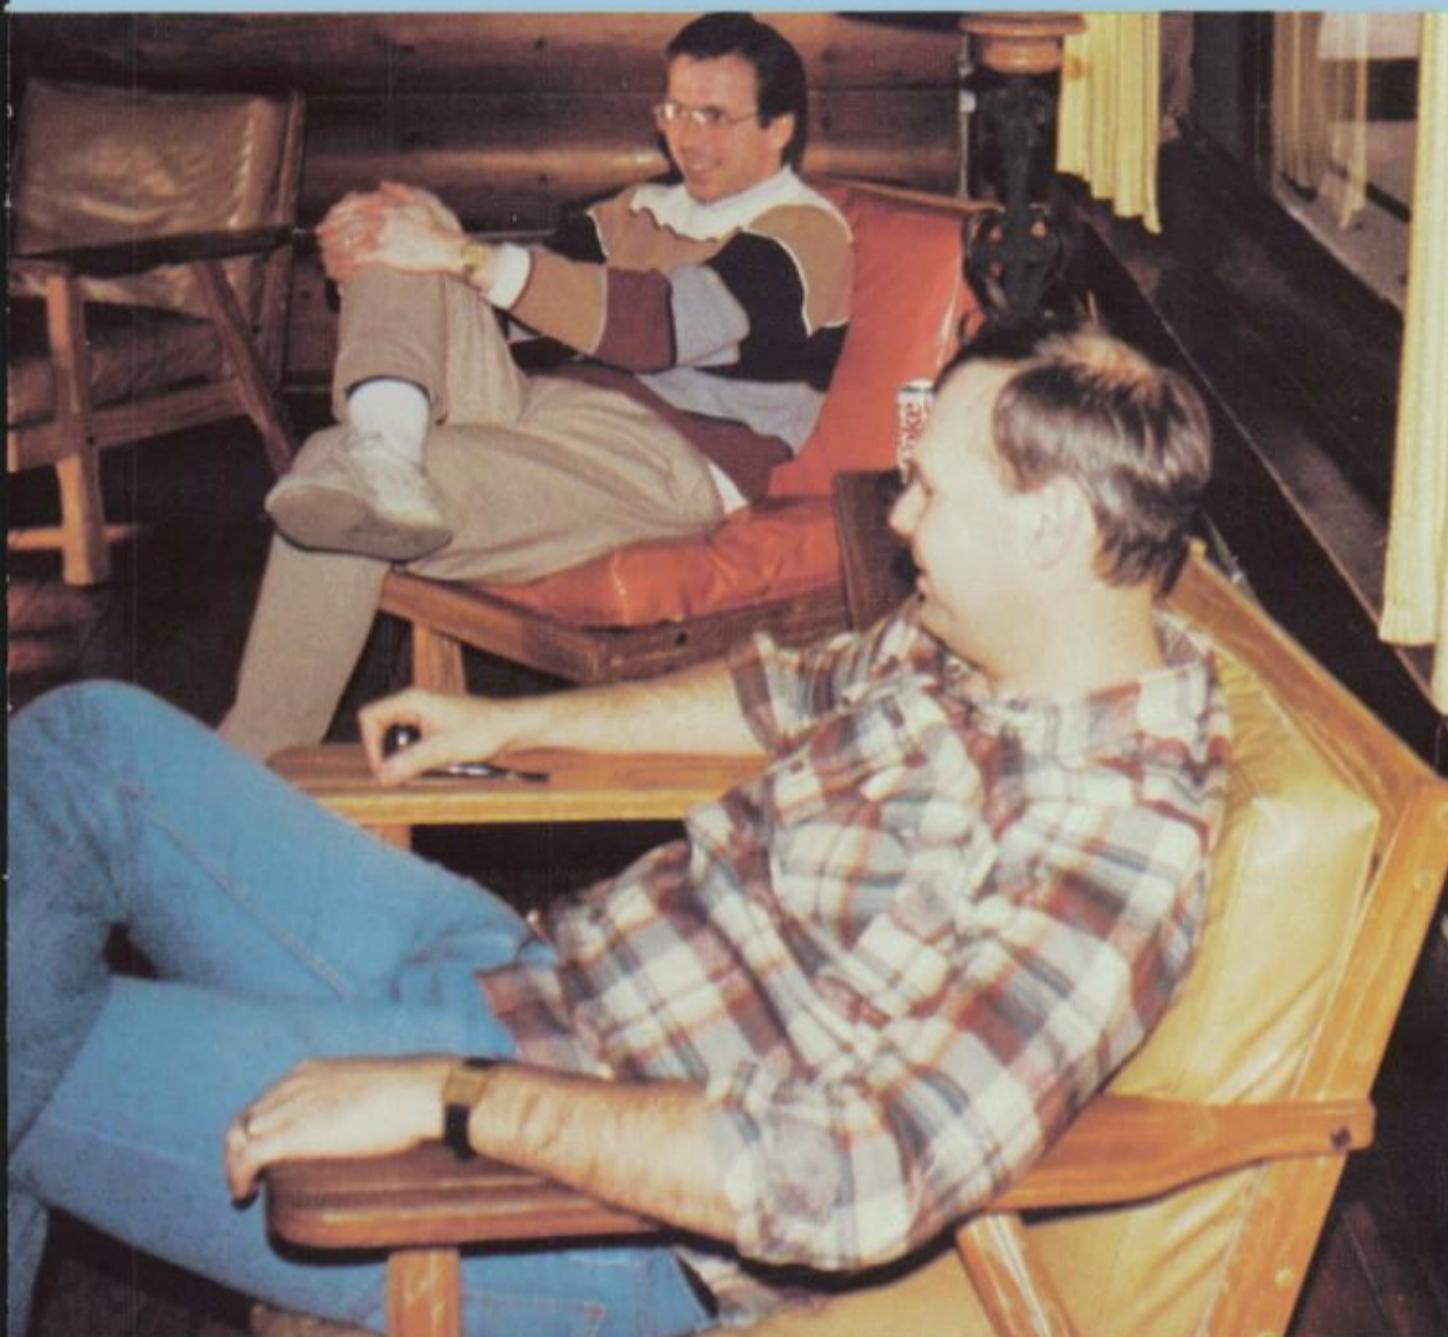

While at the Junior Ring Ceremony, Tony Marasco looks on as the priest receives the gifts of bread, water, and wine.

With some free time on his hands, Mr. Renner enjoys a pensive moment late in the evening.

Growth and Discovery

The key elements of the retreat program

As students visited the gym or La Salle Manor in order to take part in the retreat programs, the whole purpose according to Br. Leo Weidner is to help students better understand themselves as well as the people in their lives.

The freshman retreat, run by Fr. Terry Deffenbough, and the sophomore retreat, run by Mr. Bill Johnson and Mr. Frank Giangreco, consisted of small group discussions that centered on getting students to interact with one another. The junior and senior retreats, held at La Salle Manor in Plano, Illinois, focused more on the individual. A meditation period and group discussions helped students to realize their strengths and look to where they were going in the future. Combined with the group activities were free periods which allowed the retreatants to play sports, swim, ice skate, socialize, or just enjoy the beautiful scenery. Through the process of retreats, students tended to grow individually and discovered more about their own lives.

Getting into the Spirit of Things

The School Rallies Behind Its Football, Basketball, and Swimming Teams

With the football, basketball, and swimming teams faring very well, pride and spirit in the school busted loose as students and faculty attended games regularly. To really build up spirit, early dismissal schedules enabled students to head out to early games or assemble in the gym for pep rallies. "Mean Green" shirts, hats, and "terrible towels" abounded throughout the hallways — signs of true spirit.

The student administrators incorporated some other off-beat activities to fortify school spirit — what it really stands for. The Homecoming Carnival attempted to get students tuned into what the school itself offers, in addition to rallying behind the football team. During Spirit Week, students engaged in the tug-of-war contests between homerooms, volleyball games against the faculty, a challenging "Wheel of Fortune" puzzle, and "Hard Hat" day. Other days, students wore green and gold clothing to show their pride. In particular, juniors and seniors wearing their class rings also exhibited their pride in the school.

Giving all they've got, Homeroom, led by Brian Hayes and Carl Kocur, gain an early edge in the finals of the tug-o-war competition.

School Dances

break the monotony

Once in awhile, a break in the action of everyday school life is necessary. Dances help students get away from the same tiresome routine of school. During the course of the year, several dances were held to provide relief. Students from neighboring girls schools were invited to attend these social events. Live bands of Disk jockeys (DJ's) provided the music and entertainment. Some dances were formal and others were casual. But no matter the attire, these dances helped student relax, enjoy, and meet new people.

During Intramurals, Team play means victory

Once again, intramurals provided homerooms with the opportunity to perform as a team. Coach Bauer ran the program of four sports: football, basketball, volleyball, and swimming.

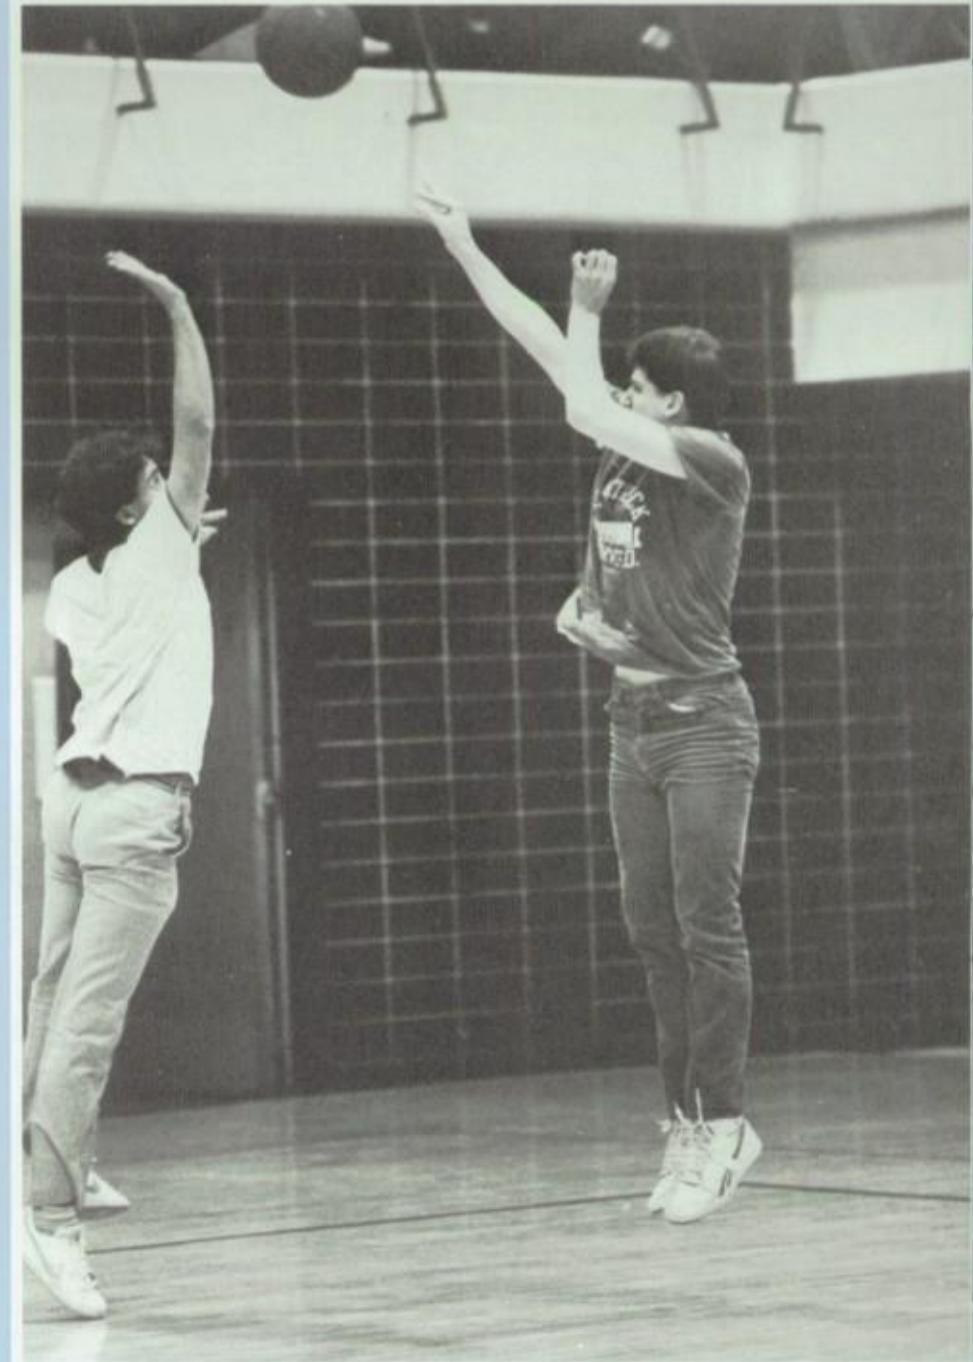

In football, four offensive players tried to penetrate the opposing team's four man defense. The Quarterback had the option of passing or scrambling for points. For basketball, two games were played at the same time on each side of the gym. All games were played with the same basic rules with the exception being that all teams had four members on the court at a time.

Volleyball was played much in the same way as basketball with 2 games going at the same time and with a minimum of four players. Swimming was a one day only event with homerooms entering students in different categories, such as the 100 yd freestyle and free mat relay.

Members of the winning homeroom's team in each sport received championship T-shirts as proof of their achievement.

as Juniors Receive Their Class Rings.

After months of incessant waiting, 260 juniors finally received their class rings. Thursday night, March 26, marked the special occasion. Not an ordinary event, all the attendees wore their best suits or nicest sweaters. During the mass, the rings received a blessing. Students were reminded of the school insignia and its importance: religion, morals, and culture. Near the end of the ceremony, Br. Konrad passed each treasure on to its respective owner. Upon reaching their seats, each ring bearer examined his new possession with friends and family around him. Following the mass, refreshments were served in the cafeteria at which time friends viewed each other's rings without the hush of the mass.

Prom Signals

One step closer for Juniors

On May 5th, juniors enjoyed a wonderful time at their prom. They danced to the music of Encore at Braggs's. Despite a lack of support and the cancellation of the prom, it turned out to be a huge success for the junior department of the student council, and those in attendance at the annual social event.

After-prom activities included free dining, carriage rides downtown, and cruises along the lakeshore. In general, the evening was fun for all who attended and those who missed out this year have one last chance with their senior prom next year.

Senior Prom 1987

A Night to Remember.

Anticipation started brewing for seniors on May 9, 1987 at about three o'clock. Senior Prom, not just any night of dinner and dancing but one of the top two events of a senior's year, had arrived.

The real excitement started up to a month in advance with tuxedoes to rent, corsages to buy, and post-prom festivities to plan. Before one could blink an eye, the most prestigious night had come upon the expectant seniors.

The typical prom-goer's evening started with picture taking at his house and then more picture taking at his date's house along with corsage pinning. Once underway, the couples made their way to the Penthouse Ballroom at the Ramada Hotel.

Carl Urbinati and his date examine the "Baby" class ring given to all senior's escorts by Mr. Presslak and Mr. Kehoe.

The evening began with a traditional but appreciated welcoming from the senior moderators, Mr. Jerry Kehoe and Mr. Rudy Presslak, who also served as expert wardrobe judges.

With a mug in his hand and a baby class ring in her hand, the couple desperately tried to find friends to sit with. Once seated, dinner began. A very elegant six course meal filled every table and every appetite.

As dinner digested in the stomachs of many, music was supplied by the D.J. Slowly but surely couples made their way to the dance floor. By nine o'clock, one could not find a couple sitting down and if a couple was sitting it was probably to catch a breather and then back for more dancing. Intervals between the D.J. and the band kept everyone busy until about eleven o'clock — the start of the garter dance. Some took their date's garters off quickly (the unexperienced), some took the garters off slowly (the romantics), and some just ripped off the garters with their teeth (the untamed). After the garter dance, couples gradually went on to the many post-prom activities.

The night found couples on a romantic carriage ride downtown, or on a boat ride to view the Chicago Skyline from Lake Michigan, and some went to the many hotel parties that were just about everywhere.

Regardless of what the activity was, the night ended at two o'clock or six o'clock in the morning and usually in the same way — a goodnight kiss, sometimes a little more and sometimes a little less.

Bill Vlachos and his date share an intimate joke during dinner.

As did many seniors, Matt Torossi and his date arrived at the hotel in style.

With a mass at Holy Name Cathedral, Seniors Graduate with a feeling of accomplishment.

On May 21st, Holy Name Cathedral in downtown Chicago was not only the site of an evening mass, it was also the end of a long four journey. Two-hundred and thirty-two seniors gathered for the last time to celebrate the Baccalaureate Liturgy and Commencement Exercises. This was a contrast to the graduation practice held a week earlier where everyone was casually dressed and somewhat rowdy. Senior moderators Mr. Jerry Kehoe and Mr. Rudy Presslak organized the practice and also distributed caps, gowns, tickets,

An hour before the ceremony, seniors arrived in formal attire to meet with other graduating students for a final mass. The commencement exercises began with the entrance of the celebrant Msgr. Daniel M. Cantwell, followed soon after by the Class of 1987, and finally the entire faculty. The processional was sung by the St. Patrick Alumni Chorus, ranging from the Classes of 1959 to 1986.

Following the opening prayer, came the first reading, responsorial psalm, and the second reading presented by Alex Rzepka, Tim Campbell, and Jeff Ardito, respectively. The Gospel and homily were delivered briefly by Msgr. Cantwell. His message was in fact "a commissioning of graduates." Soon after the administration of the Eucharist, Rhoel Tierra read his Valedictorian Oration. Br. Konrad then recited his congratulatory address and was followed by Mr. Lowell Stahl, a graduate of the Class of 1952, who welcomed the newly inducted alumni.

The big moment had finally arrived. The long four wait, five for some, had come to an end. The presentation of diplomas and certificates of appreciation was met with wide applause and elation. The growing bond between the members of the Class of 1987 was definitely evident as seniors clapped for one another. The Shannon Rovers lead the recessional ceremony out on to State Street where friends and family rejoiced. Sadness was shared as seniors extended congratulations and said their last good-byes. This Graduation was a fitting conclusion for wonderful class and an even more memorable year.

Not Enough

Academics, one of the two most important aspects of high school (the other being extracurricular activities), is also the one aspect that is most often forgotten and not given enough attention. That's where the theme of this section, "Not Enough," is tied in. The theme is actually a contrast, or irony if you will, since the section is solely dedicated to academics and a few of its many facets such as tutoring and senioritis.

Playing a Dual Role Teacher-Coaches Excel in Two Fields

What motivates someone to retreat from the playboy life of a single man or the ball-and-chain life of marriage to coach a high school team, let alone to teach? Only the people we know as our teacher-coaches know.

A teacher-coach might trace his beginnings to as far back as his childhood. In the case of Mr. Arthur, his interest in history in his learning years molded him into one of our fine history teachers. His interest in running destined him to join the Des Plaines Runners Club and take the job of assistant coach of the track and cross-country teams. In the case of Mr. Troxell, his interest in the sciences and excelling in math shaped him into one of our top algebra and geometry teachers. His involvement as the trainer and director of his high school team enables him to coach the linebackers and receivers on Varsity in addition to coaching football on other levels.

Respect comes as a by-product and a teacher-coach earns respect from his students and athletes as a result of his actions on the field and in the classroom. Mr. Arthur runs with the teams during practice and gets to know the members and the members also get to know him. Students in his class rarely get bored, but instead are always attentive due to his teaching style. Mr. Troxell believes in the "bust your tail" theory on and off the field. Just as an athlete puts in an all-out effort on the field, the same effort better go into schoolwork. If a student slacks off on or off the field, one can be assured that Mr. Troxell will take care of his problem.

Yet the school's "iron"

teachers receive no great salaries as Coach Mike Ditka. It takes more dedication than anyone imagines to teach and coach. During the track and cross-country seasons, which take place at different times of the year, Mr. Arthur rarely spends any solid time with his two young children and wife. To write up a teaching plan for the next day's lessons can be a nightmare. Less pressure pinches Mr. Troxell who leads the single life. During the football season, Mr. Troxell gives up his time with the gang to devote himself to his teaching career and coaching job. The only reward a teacher-coach gets from his students and athletes is to see that each one succeeds in his field, whether it's in the classroom or on the playing field.

Striving to Aid Students —

Student Services Provides Materials to Help Students Plan Their Futures

Throughout the year, students seeking counseling, career information, or information on colleges, easily found materials in the Student Services department. The Student Services office contained a small library of books, files, and pamphlets on colleges, as well as a huge compilation of materials on career opportunities. The computer in the office contained information on qualifications for colleges, required courses needed to enter certain colleges and universities, and the degrees offered by these particular schools.

In addition to material on careers and colleges, counseling was also available in the Student Services office. Students who needed guidance, usually on the scheduling of courses, spoke to the counselor assigned to the student by his last name.

The major goal of the Student Services department was to counsel, teach, and guide students to reach their developmental goals for personal growth, academic achievement, and to prepare them for life after high school. When asked about the achievement of this goal, Ms. Pisani replied, "There is constant striving to change to meet the needs of today's students in today's society. I see a sincere and complete dedication of each counselor to try to meet these needs."

Seniors Learn to Help People In Christian Service Class

One of the most important, but least recognized classes has been the Christian Service Class. This class, which was run by Br. Leo Weidner, is open exclusively to seniors. The main part of the class consisted of four hours a week of work either at a hospital, nursing home, or grammar school.

About once every two weeks the class met for about two hours, and the students discussed previous experiences. As for the goals of the class, Br. Leo said, "I'd like the students to directly experience helping someone, to really see what it feels like, whether it be good or bad." There was a short training program at the beginning where the students discovered what talents or qualifications they possessed and what field would be the best for them.

To get into the class the students had to apply as juniors and be recommended by their junior religion teacher. Br. Leo only looked for certain kinds of people and stated, "If you're joining to get out of class regularly then this isn't for you." But the class has proven to be very beneficial for those who took part in it.

Tutoring Help Available

Students Don't Go for Help

During the year, students received the opportunity to get help in their studies through the tutoring program. Containing a total of thirty tutors, the program was run by the N.H.S. From 7:45 to 8:15, Tuesdays through Fridays, students were able to receive help in any subject, but math and English were the most popular. According to Br. John Vietoris, the N.H.S. moderator, the major goal of the program was to improve the academic performance of students in the school.

The program worked very well throughout the year and was very helpful to those who took advantage of it. Only about six to twelve people a week came for tutoring and that was a setback for the program. Teachers were asked to encourage students who needed help to go for tutoring, but, according to Br. John, the main problem was the "many students who were failing a subject knew about tutoring but did not initiate help."

Students usually came in the day before, or the day of a test in order to receive a few last minute pointers. Any student who went for tutoring were always able to expect an upperclassmen to give quality help no matter what subject it was.

Peer Ministry Program — Helps Students Help Their Peers

Marty Nolan.

The relatively new program in which students counsel fellow students has gained considerable popularity. In addition to the regular counseling department, the Peer Ministry program has enabled many to earn credit, at the same time help others.

A handful of dedicated students met during zero period with Ms. Fitzgerald and Br. Leo to discuss and learn how to help their peers develop more positive relationships. Class discussion consisted of students relating their personal experiences or sometimes hypothetical situations, which were later evaluated. Students would give input on how to deal with each predicament. These exercises would help them in the future to counsel peers.

Peer helpers were basically introduced to aid their fellow students in dealing with everyday teen concerns. This was accomplished through private discussion, direct contact in daily school life, and retreats, where peer ministers sometimes assumed leadership roles. Through the guidance of Ms. Fitzgerald and Br. Leo, as well as the involvement guest speakers, many topics involving teens were covered.

The Peer Ministry program has provided the school with a helpful service. Teens relate better to their peers, so who better to discuss situations with than peer ministers. The program encourages teens to help each other, in turn creating a more positive attitude toward the community.

French Class Game

Helps Alleviate Senioritis

At the start of the second semester, a horrible disease plagued the senior class — Senioritis. Symptoms included lack of interest and participation in classes, a carefree attitude toward academics, and a general impatience for graduation day. Although this ailment is near-impossible to cure, the valiant St. Patrick faculty gave their best try.

One of the most interesting solutions originated in Mr. Rolfs' 7th period French IV class. Whenever a class period seemed too boring, or the students seemed tired of school, Mr. Rolfs would announce that they would play AEROBALLE during the last 5 minutes of class. This game was played with a nerf hoop ball, and their French textbooks — Aer-odrame. The class would sit in their desks in a circle and hit the ball in the air to each other with their textbooks, counting how many hits until the ball fell to the floor. Essentially, this alleviated much of the tension built up during the day — and made the class enjoyable.

John Sikora returns a shot toward Mr. Rolfs.

Incurable Disease Hits St. Pats as Senioritis strikes the whole Class of '87

As a student enters his senior year, he often looks past it to prom, graduation, and a great summer. However, he still has a whole year of high school he must struggle through first. That's why a senior enters his final year with more than just a hint of impatience, he wants to graduate as soon as possible.

These factors make ideal conditions for senioritis. Usually about midway through the final year, just after the beginning of the final semester, senioritis lands a foothold on a handful of students. And like an incurable disease, it spreads until the entire class, except for maybe one or two immune bookworms, shows symptoms of it. At first, students attribute it to laziness or lack of time, but by the time there's a month of school left, most seniors, if not all, accept the fact that they're carriers of senioritis and can't do anything about it.

This creates a crisis for the teachers who have to deal with the infected students. Not only can they not get a senior's attention, but if they're not careful, they're also sucked into their world of blatant carelessness. So instead of fighting it, the faculty and students learn to just tolerate it.

Tough Enough

During the course of several different sports seasons, beyond the performance on the field and on the court, the athletes put in countless hours of unrewarded, but dedicated work. All this work is geared toward fine tuning and making the athlete tough enough to compete with confidence, ability, and stamina. Although usually unnoticed, the work is more than enough reward when a winning attitude is established and the W's begin piling up, especially as they did during this year. Not only did the teams, and the individual athletes perform tough enough to win, but the student body rallied behind them and often became the deciding factor in close competition.

SPORTS

Varsity Football Season

excites the school as team rolls on.

Talk about a season of thrills! An explosive offense combined with a ferocious defense gave St. Pat's football enthusiasts a year to be proud of. The Shamrocks' shared the conference championship with Marist, with the only loss during the season coming against Marist to give the Shamrocks a 6-1 record in conference and an 8-1 record overall. Unfortunately, the season screeched to a stop as Lake Park defeated St. Pat's 33-21 in the first round of the playoffs. "We had great senior leadership and everyone played to their potential," explained Coach Urban.

Practice in the fundamentals, especially blocking, tackling, and repetitions, payed off. The season provided many highlights for the fans able to come out to the games. Joliet Catholic had little hope coming in to Hanson and wished they never came when the Shamrocks rocked them for J.C.'s first conference loss. If any fans braved the rains on the weekend against Viator, they saw the mud bowl. Sloppy play almost cost the game for the Shamrocks except for some late heroics. The only thing that hindered the Shamrocks late in the season in the playoffs was weariness on the lines after a long, grueling campaign.

As expected, the team won many awards and received much deserved recognition. Eddie Thomas, star quarterback and the man behind the offense, deserved his All-area honor. All-conference honors also went to well deserving players as: Curtis Lipsey, who managed 12 TD's, Chuck Ward, who caught 31 passes for 620 yards and compiled 44 points, Carl Kocur, Bill Freeny, Sean Crilly, Steve Carpinelli, Kevin Kane and Brian Hayes. Even Z-95 awarded a Team of the Week Award during the season to the Shamrocks (see pg. 109).

With returning all-star juniors and a healthy crop of sophomores, next year's team should provide many thrills. But they do have a tough act to follow. In Coach Urban's words, "This was the most exciting season thus far. The explosiveness of the offense gave us a chance to score on any play at any time. When you have a tenacious defense to backup the offense, you have an outstanding team."

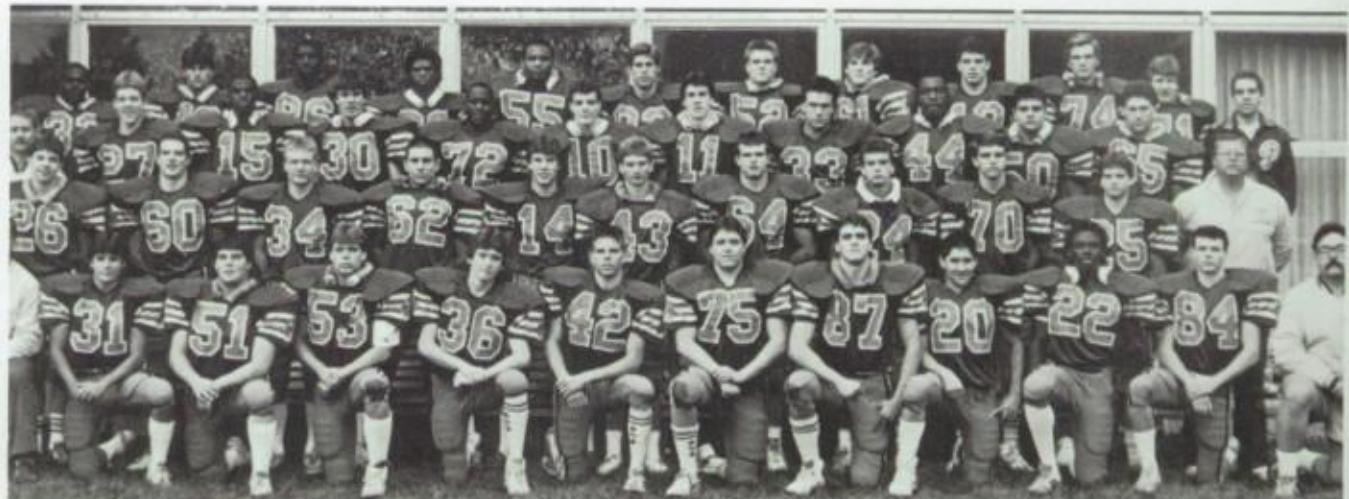

Chuck Ward makes a spectacular fingertip catch.

Have spectacular seasons with solid play.

Once again St. Pats fielded a fine freshman team, which finished second in conference at its level. An excellent running game, backed by solid passing, gave them the most explosive offense in the conference.

After their first loss to the eventual conference champs Carmel, they bounced back to have one of their season's highlights, a victory over St. Joseph's. Head coach Greg Jacobsen commented, "I feel we were able to put it all together and play an excellent game against St. Joseph. Also much of the team got to play."

In hope of a conference champ out of his team next season, Coach Jacobsen ended saying, "They learned the basic fundamentals this year and had fun to. Good off-season work should make an even better team."

After being undefeated conference champs, the sophomore team had a rough season. The team had a potent offense supported by a line that didn't allow a sack. Defense though, was the backbone of the team shutting out five opponents. Head coach Frank Bauer felt the team improved even though the record did not show it, saying,

"Comradery was the strength of this team. Learning to play as a team and not as individuals made them better."

Their first feeling of non-victory was not even a loss, but a 14-14 tie with Carmel. Two games later came a 20-14 victory over tough conference rival Joliet Catholic. Finally came the turning point of the season, two bitter losses in the final seconds to St. Viator and Marist. In retrospect, Coach Bauer concluded, "The team still played excellently and I know they have learned a lot that will help them during their varsity years."

Varsity Soccer Team

Excels In Best Season Ever.

Inconsistency, and sporadic play were the varsity soccer team's greatest enemies during the season. Despite these obstacles, the team did manage to win the most games in the program's brief history and it provided returning players with valuable experience on the varsity level. The fundamentals of the game and ball possession must be improved if the team is to play better, however.

One major highlight of the season was the team's come-from-behind victory over St. Laurence in which the team won 3-2 in overtime. Another highlight was their 4-0 shutout of Riverside-Brookfield. Also, senior Joe Composto received an All-Conference award while Andy Dislers, Mark England, Jerry Cichon, and Scott Hackbert received honorable mention.

A 12-0 loss to Oak Park and a 10-0 loss to St. Joe's proved to be the team's two low points during the season. According to Coach Ward, the defense was steady throughout the year and the offense created many scoring opportunities. Even though the losses outnumbered the wins, the team never lost heart and always kept trying.

Coach Ward stated that there are some weaknesses that need to be corrected before next season. One is establishing a stronger midfield and filling the offensive vacancies. A strong emphasis on the fundamentals will also be incorporated into the practice sessions. According to Coach Ward, one thing the team learned is that they are capable of playing well against as well as beating established programs.

Lack Consistency, but play aggressively.

In an interview with soccer coach Bob Ward, to discover the Fr.-Soph. soccer team's achievements, Coach Ward admitted the improvement in the team's performance was due to a much more competitive spirit. During the course of the season, even though there are many tough opponents, St. Joseph and St. Viator pulled ahead in victories. The whole team tried hard, but there always stood those few who tower in ability by contributing their skills to the team's defense, such as Tony Filipelli, Rick Magrady, and Joe O'Connor of the Sophomore Shamrocks. Of course there are those at the freshman level who show promise towards next year's team, like Bob Lesinski, Gustavo Guerra, Charlie Warzynski, and Carlos Tomala.

Like all good coaches, Coach Bob Ward has a philosophy, DISCIPLINE. By using this guideline the 1986-1987 Shamrocks acquired the skills of trapping and passing. The Shamrocks, using the skills they've practiced on, strove to highlight the season with the freshmen beating Joliet Catholic and tying Marist. While the Sophomores had good cause in which they showed good but unfortunately inconsistent defense while the Freshmen displayed good aggressive ball control. Unfortunately, scoring was one of the Shamrock's weaknesses. This led to losses due to the inability to put the ball in the net. This year's Most Valuable Player awards went to Sophomore Rick Magrady and Freshman Bob Lesinski, while sophomore Tony Filipelli and freshman Charlie Warzynski took home awards for best defensive players. Also best offensive player went to Freshman Gustavo Guerra. Coach Bob Ward admits that improvements are needed in offensive power to strengthen next year's teams.

Cross Country —*Bright future with Young Runners.

"Even though Varsity runners had a poor record, the success of the Fr.-Soph. Cross Country team should inspire for greater things to come," said Coach Arthur. The Varsity finished the year 5th overall in conference, while the Fr.-Soph. team ended with an impressive 2nd overall standing. Veteran Paul Rocks led the way on Varsity while budding runner Bill Keane contributed on the Fr.-Soph. level winning conference!

It seemed as though the varsity struggled throughout the year, and the Fr.-Soph. team started out red hot, but ran into trouble at the end of the season. As Coach Arthur stated, "The team did very well with fine performances at the beginning. But with early successes, the team developed a callous attitude towards work and that hurt us later when we faced highly competitive teams as Marist, making them our toughest competition."

As disappointing of a last season as it turned out one major accomplishment stands out. At the second largest Cross Country meet in the United States, the Niles West Invitational, the team finished 2nd out of forty. "If we concentrate on the young runners coming back next year and focus on their weaknesses in order to delete them, our squad will only get better and better."

Paul Rocks concentrates on the finish line as he leads the pack.

Golf Teams play well, But opposition too tough.

Unfortunately for the golf teams, neither reached the .500 mark this season as their goal set by coach Hayes. The Varsity finished 2-10 and the Fr.-Soph. team posted a 2-6 record. According to Coach Hayes, "We have a very competitive conference with some excellent golf teams and individuals. They (the team) played just about as well as they could."

Though the team lacked outstanding talent, desire to play the game of golf as best as they could kept their spirits alive. Without sufficient practice time, St. Pat's failed to offer any real challenge to a team such as St. Viator. But Pat Enright brightened the future with consistent play and going beyond his capabilities. In Coach Hayes' opinion, "We must get a good player who may not have tried out previously. He must offer competition for the individuals out on the team now."

To pose a threat, the golf team needs improvement in consistency and accuracy in driving and putting. With the season behind them the golf team looks to next year. In the dismal words of Coach Hayes, "We can't be criticized for not trying. We just didn't play well enough."

19-7

A tremendous season of exciting play highlighted Coach Max Kurland's 27th year as Varsity coach. The team finished 19-7 overall and 11-3 in conference. But illnesses in the final three weeks of the season plagued the team and hampered their chances in the playoffs.

The offense, led by Doug Borders on the inside and Steve Terrell on the outside, contributed heavily to the success. It had to. According to Coach Kurland, "Our defense was erratic — up and down. Besides needing a taller team, we need to improve the defense for next year."

Overall, the team pleased Coach Kurland by good team work and playing to at least their capabilities. The winning of the St. Pat's Thanksgiving Tournament highlighted an impressive year. Doug Borders and Steve Terrell won all-conference honors, and Steve Budzinski won special mention. In addition, Doug Borders received a scholarship to Loyola and Steve Terrell one to Utah. "The juniors need to work hard to repeat this year next season." According to Coach Kurland, "The year was great but disappointing. Great in what we accomplished, but disappointing for how it ended."

Teams perform admirably

Facing a very tough conference, the freshman basketball team pulled away with an impressive third place finish. Coach Jarka concentrated on a strong defensive team, and got one. The squad brought home a second place trophy in the Weber Thanksgiving tournament, and a first place trophy in the Loyola Christmas tournament. "But winning is not as important as giving your best every time out," said Coach Jarka.

Everyone on the team contributed, in their own way, toward the team's success, especially, MVP's Kevin Terrell and Ricky Pufpaf who lead the team throughout the year. "As a group of fine young men," Coach Jarka proudly says, "we are champions."

Despite this year's near .500 season, the sophomores performed admirably for Mr. Willert. "It was the lack of shoot ability that hurt, but we simply had to handle it," he explained. The Sophomores never gave up. After a three game losing streak the underclassmen fought back to win six in a row. They entered the conference playoffs with a healthy attitude, but without the fine leadership of MVP Terry Cameron, the team would have struggled throughout the playoffs. "It was a lot of fun this year," said Willert, "the kids were disciplined, proud, and enjoyed themselves, and that is what it's all about."

Pressured by the opposing team, Jim Jerger looks for the open man.

With hard work and dedication, Varsity wrestlers post fine record.

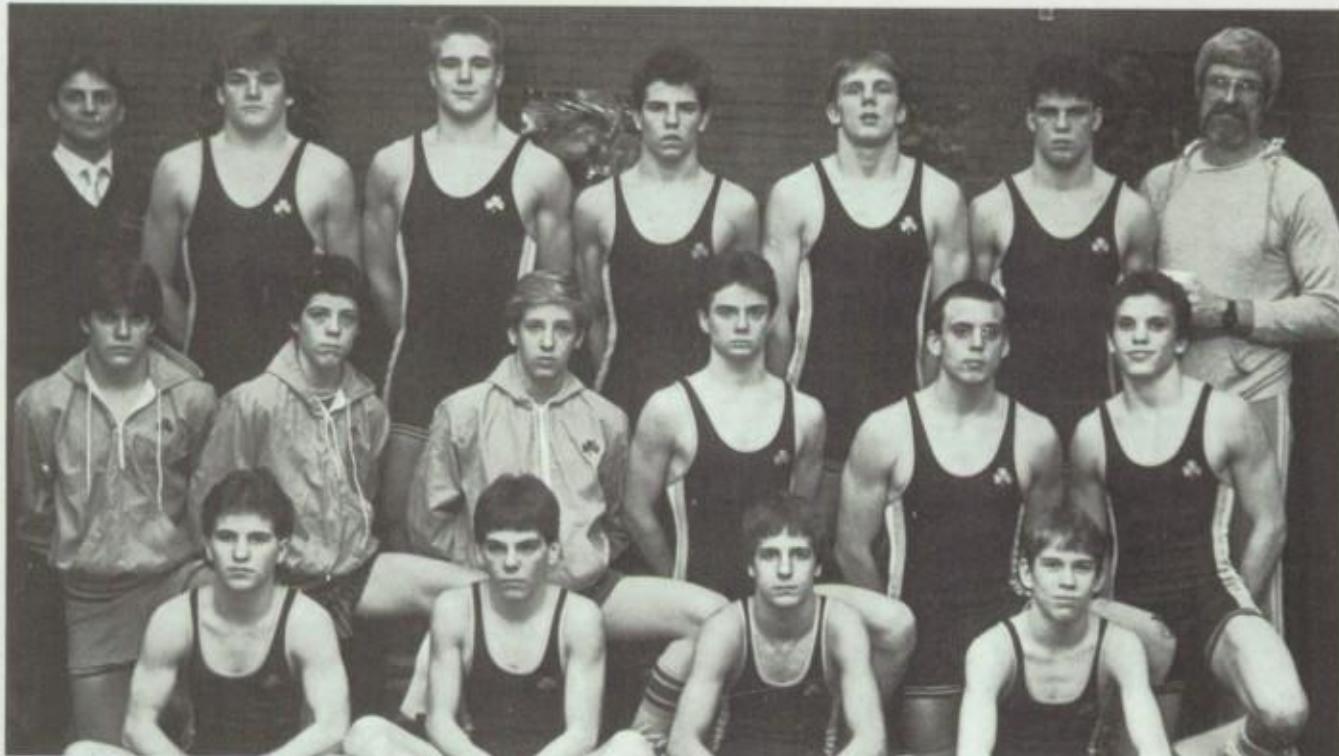

Though the varsity wrestling team did not reach its goal of qualifying for the state tournament, except for Emmett Higgin, as set by coach Niall Collins, it produced a fine varsity dual meet record of 15-6. Many wrestlers posted fine individual records.

This well-balanced team rebounded from a 7-14 record last season to this season's marvelous accomplishment of 15-6. It was the effort of all its members contributing their fine talents. Emmett Higgin led the way with a 38-8 record in addition to qualifying for state, taking first in his weight class at the Holy Cross and Regionals Tournaments, taking second in conference, and third at the

Rockford-Boylan tournament. Carl Kocur followed with a 30-6 record, conference champion, and second place in the Holy Cross Tournament and Regionals. Tony Mroczeck proved himself as a wrestler with a 28-9 record, conference champion, second in the Rockford-Boylan Tournament and Regionals, and third in the Holy Cross Tournament. Kevin Kane jumped on the bandwagon with a 31-9 record, taking second in Regionals, third in the Rockford-Boylan and Holy Cross Tournaments, and fourth in Sectionals. Future stars on the team include the Payne brothers — Pat and Brendan. Pat ended his junior year with a 31-10-1 record, taking the championship at Regionals, second at the Holy Cross Tournament, and fourth in Sectionals and the Rockford-Boylan Tournament. Brendan, as a sophomore, accomplished a 25-13 record, second at Regionals, third at Holy Cross, and fourth in Sectionals. Other future prospects to watch out for: Mike Higgin, Jon O'Malley, Joe Martinelli, Lance Weidner, Kirk Strauss, and Dan Kane.

Through dedication and that killer wrestling instinct, the Varsity Wrestling team posted a fine record of 15-6 and won two tournaments — Holy Cross and Buffalo Grove.

F-S Wrestling Squads

Improve Through Hard Work

In taking the sophomore wrestling team, Coach Ward saw the great possibility of repeating as conference champs as the freshmen the year before. But because of lacking student participation, the team only managed third place finish. "It was a tough year," Coach Ward explained, "because we were forfeiting three to four weights a match. But in spite of this, I was very pleased with the team's performance."

Although Kevin Beveridge, Dave Del Pilar, and Brendan Berry kept the team strong, the lack of members from last year's conference champs weakened their overall ability. Constant drilling during practices substituted for missing members. Much of the team's success traces to Coach Ward's philosophy:

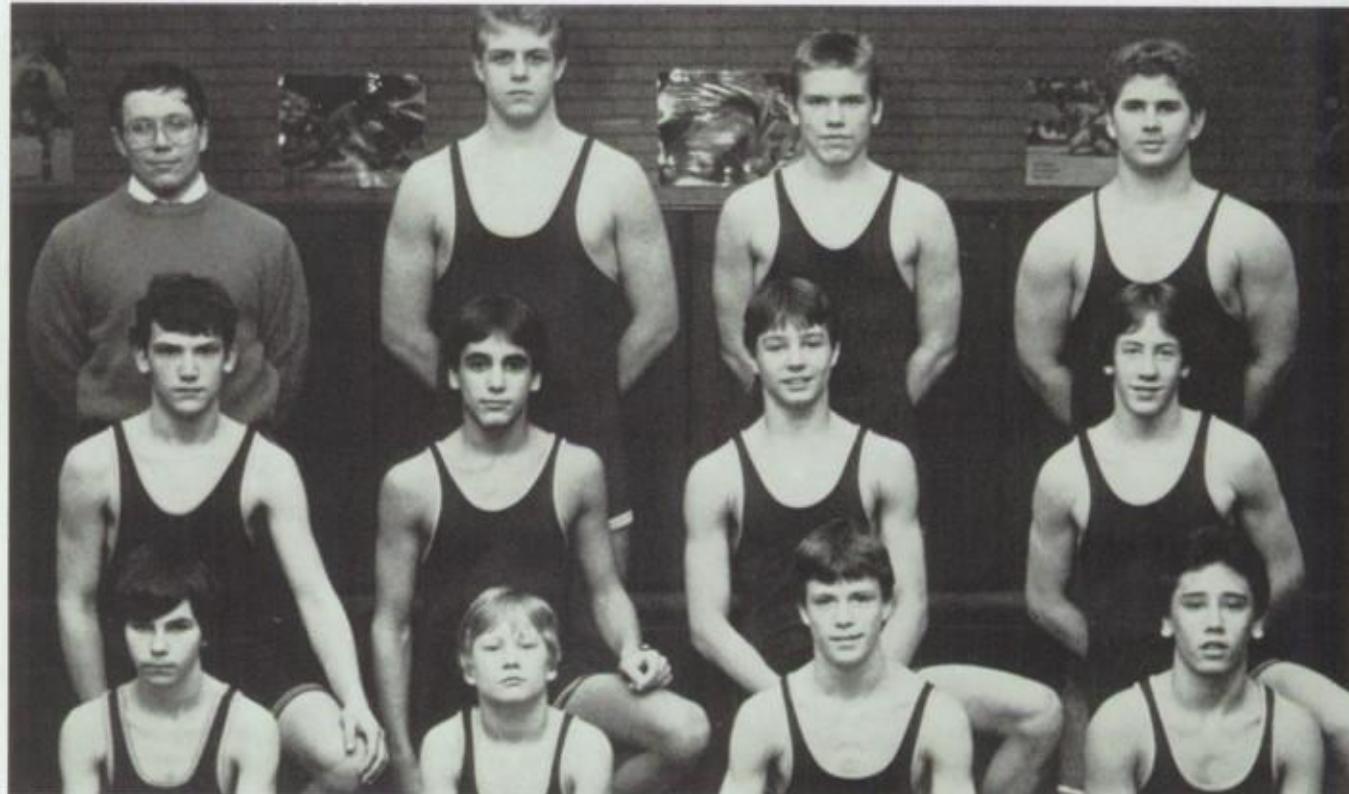

"They had to work hard, accept discipline, and live wrestling if they wanted to be winners."

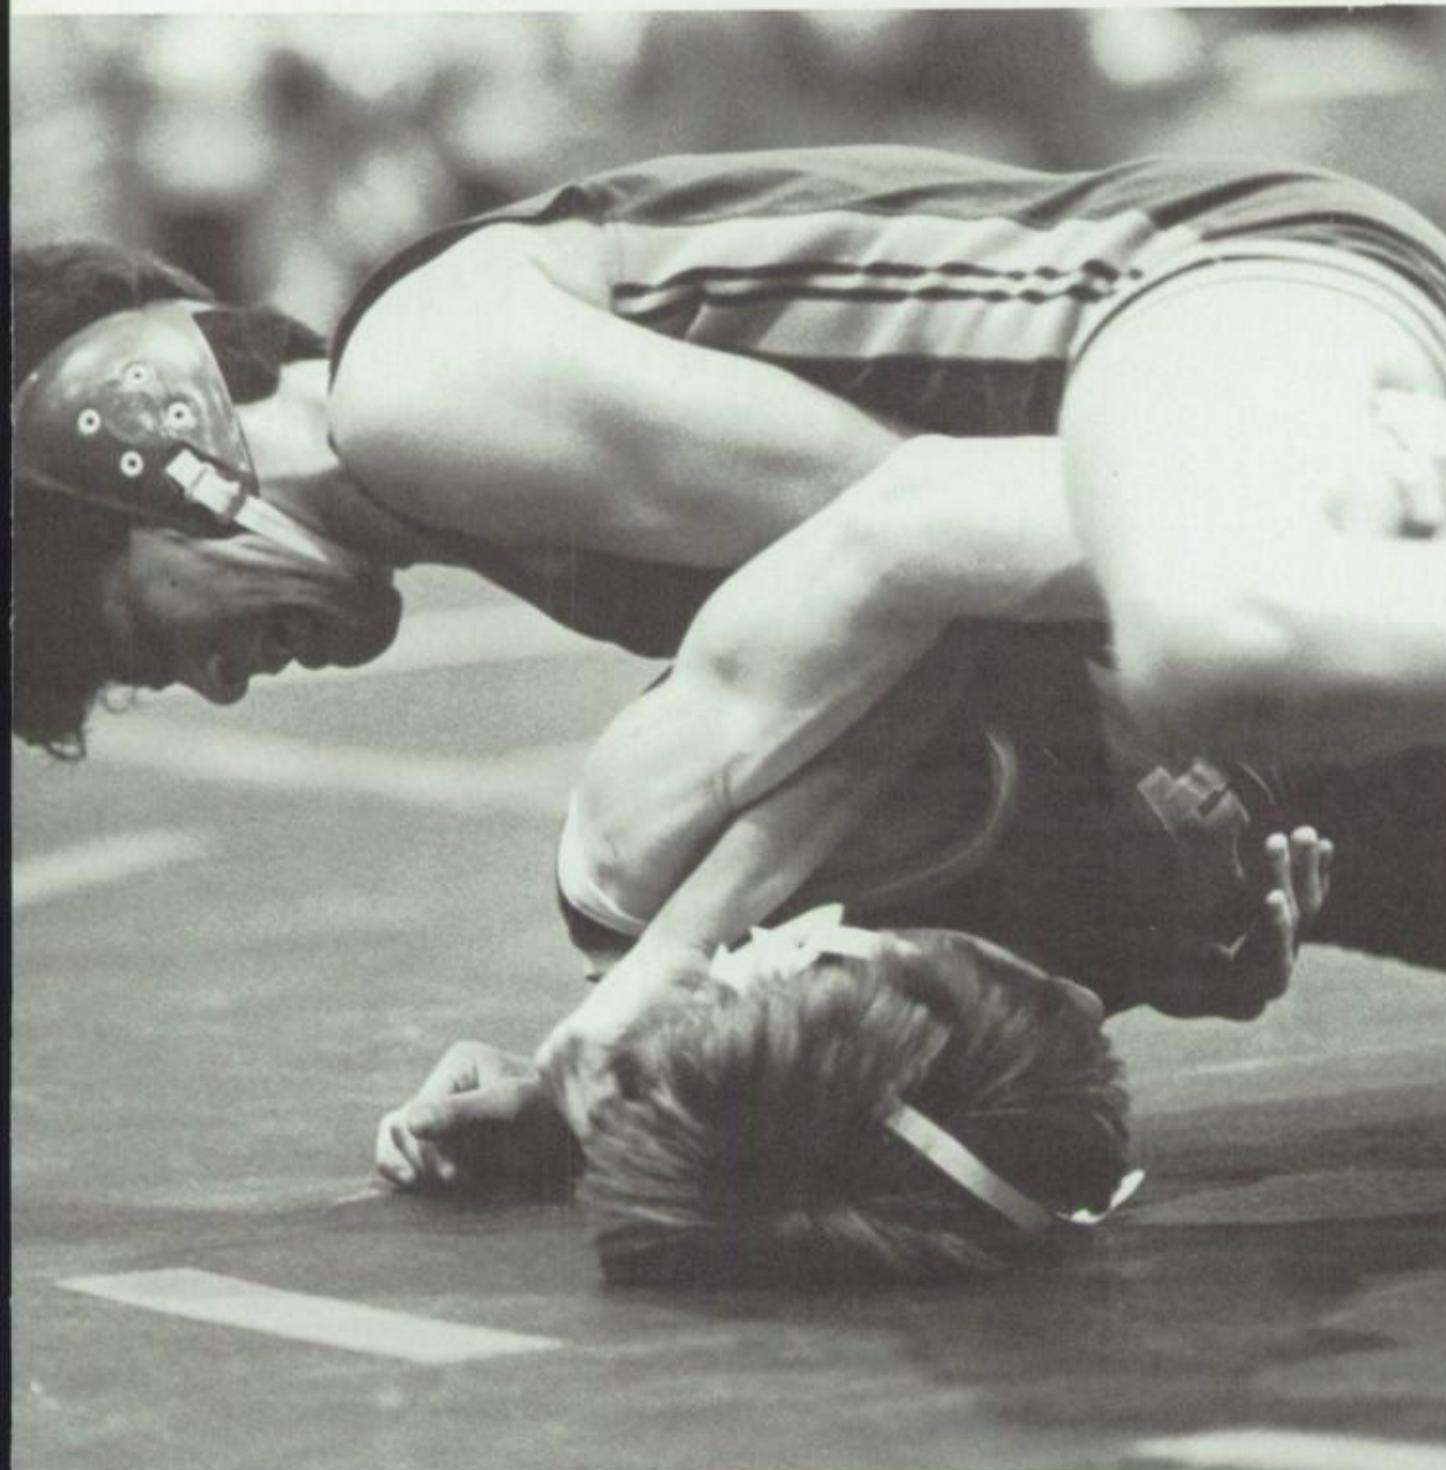

The freshman wrestlers look ready to carry on the tradition of winning. They finished 12-3 overall and took the conference championship. Even though they couldn't go undefeated in conference and dual meets, Coach Rich Kato knows the raw talent found in the freshmen. "The potential was there to go 15-0, but minor mistakes hurt us early in the season. We placed 12 of a possible 13 wrestlers in the conference tournament."

The undisputed MVP for the freshmen was Pat Duggan who went undefeated throughout the season. Almost all his wins came from pins or technical falls. Brian Moreno also contributed by winning 20 matches, Phil Sisto and Tim Marino combined for over 32 wins. Coach Kato also mentioned, "Seeing our starters improve throughout the year along with the reserves were also high points in our season. We had a good all around year, and the conference championship capped things off."

Perhaps, the most remarkable thing about the season is the fact that the team had, at most, 20 solid members and wrestled without someone in the 167 lb. slot most of the year. With a great off-season workout program, next year's sophomore squad will be the team to beat.

Brian Moreno takes the advantage.

Swimming teams improve with experience

The swimming team conditioned with weights and running in the pre-season, so when the season officially started everyone was ready to go. The team was well rounded in every event from the 200 yard Medley Relay all the way down to the 400 yard Freestyle Relay. Although there were only two divers on the Varsity level they were able to hold their own. The team finished their season with a record of 9 and 2, placing sixth at the Stevenson Relays, sixth at the Maine South Relays, and first at our very own Shamrock Relays.

Many Juniors are returning to pick up where they left off last season willing to put the pieces back together and again shoot for number 1. There are good possibilities of sending a few swimmers down state next year. Many of the swimmers worked hard over the summer to drop time and this should help greatly to the coming season. Also many Sophomores are moving up to the Varsity level which will assure, with some hard work, another well rounded team. The freshman team, not to be overshadowed turned in a fine season finishing 7-3 and placing 2nd in the conference meet under the guidance of first year Coach Scott Zimmerman.

The traditional way of celebrating a swim team victory — throw in the coach.

Varsity Baseball

Triumphs as a team

It's amazing what a team accomplishes when it pulls itself together. The varsity baseball team pulled itself together to go 19-11 overall and 8-6 in conference for a third place finish. "We had three goals besides winning conference," explained coach Presslak, "One was to win twenty games, another was to play spoiler, and the last was to go as far as possible." Though the team ended up playing spoiler in the end, Coach Presslak was pleased "Every player contributed to the team as a whole by either good fielding, hitting, or surprising pitching."

As spoilers, Varsity eliminated Holy Cross from the playoffs as the first victim. But the big thrill came when Eric Suarez beat the best hitter on Marist with a fast ball to end a victory over Marist. Unfortunately, Ledyen proved too tough for the team. A pre-season trip to Milwaukee proved helpful as the team swept a double-header and established a team effort that carried into the season. It was also a sweep of Notre Dame that propelled the Shamrocks into 3rd place in conference.

In the end, seniors Steve Sesso, Steve Carpinelli, a junior Pat Crawford received all-conference honors. Six eight seniors received scholarships to play college baseball. Sesso, Carpinelli, Pat Berger, Jeff Ardito, Sam Pardo, and Eric Buarez.

Execution of the "little things" and playing as a team brought about a successful year. In Coach Presslak's words, "It was a matter of teamwork. The guys played as a unit, not as two groups, the juniors and seniors, that's the attitude we want for next year."

F-S Baseball Teams

Show promise despite weaknesses

Injuries play a key role in whether or not a team succeeds. The sophomore baseball team fell victim to injuries that led them to a .500 (15-15) season. But as importantly as injuries played in the season, so did the pitching staff. "One of our greatest weaknesses besides injuries is the lack of depth of our pitching staff. That's something we need to improve on," commented Coach Miller.

Though the year carried a sour taste, it also had its sweet moments. A surprising 7-run rally against Carmel highlighted the best win of the season. Two bright stars shone out — John Leyden, "who as a freshman played like a sophomore" and Bill Dean, "who as a sophomore played like a senior." Both shared the team's MVP honors.

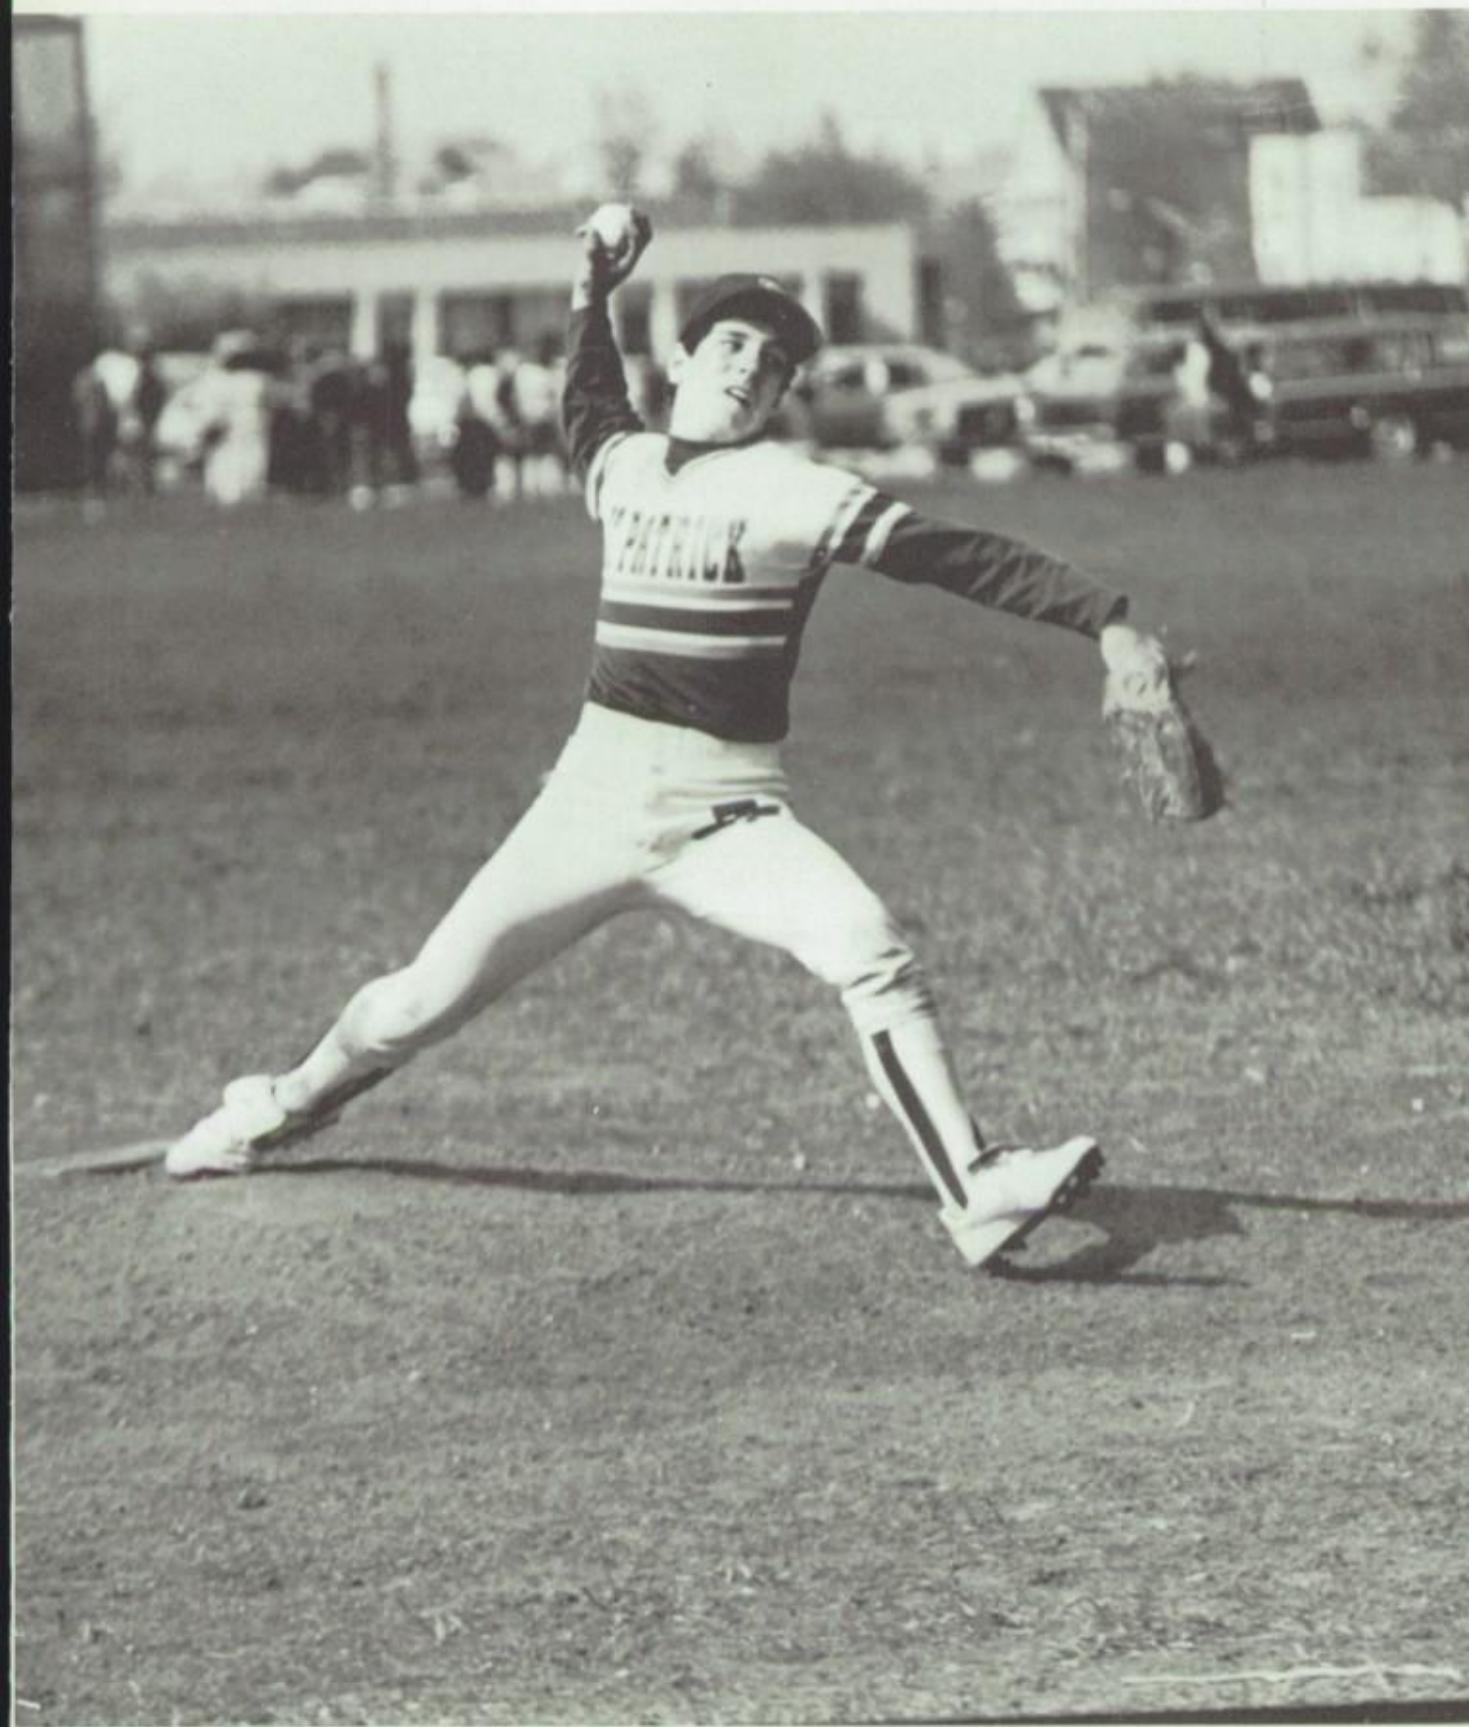

Though their 5-9 record may not show it, the freshman team gave every effort to be successful. In coach Jarka's view, "They improved everyday in the fundamentals and their own individual skills." Everyone contributed in their own way to the success of the whole team. Bob Richard and Scott Azara were named Co-MVP's for their outstanding play. "It's hard to win when you play in a tough conference," remarked coach Jarka. If the young team works hard in the off-season, they may come back and surprise a lot of people.

Track teams improve

Individual records and performances

Greg Dettman competes in the shotput.

For the 1986-87 track teams, the year turned out to be one full of plusses. School records were set and many of the team members made the sectionals. Junior Brian Hyde set a school record of 41 feet and 7 inches in the Triple Jump event. The Shamrocks began to shine when Senior Eddie Thomas, Junior Paul Rocks, and Sophomore Bill Keane, went to sectionals. Thomas just missed going down state in the Low Hurdle with a time of 38.8 seconds, while Bill Keane ran a 4:25.03 minute mile. Paul Rocks also turned in a great time of 2:03 minute half mile.

The entire season was filled with outstanding performances. Many of the Shamrocks competed in more than one event, as Senior Ron Rodriguez did. Ron placed highly in the High Jump, Long Jump, Discus, and Hurdles, but he was not alone. Eddie Thomas also was the man to beat in 100 meters, 200 meters, 400 meters and in many of the Relay races. There were also many strong performances by Senior Paul White, who like Thomas competed in many of the Relays, along with the 100 meter, and 400 meter sprints. Bryan Hyde was a constant plus to the team participation in the relay races, and Triple Jump. Paul Rocks proved to be a worthy opponent all season in the mile and half mile races, and Dave Vaughan had a great year in the Low Hurdles and in the 100 meters.

The Frosh/Soph team showed promise during the entire season. Tom Temelis could frequently be found leading the pack in the two mile, and there was the speed of Dan Fermuga, who excelled in the 100 meters and gave strong performances in the Low Hurdles and the Long Jump.

Based on this past year's performances, the St. Patrick track teams could stir excitement in the next few seasons.

Varsity Water Polo Team

Surprise opponents with superb season

The Water Polo team had one of the best seasons it has had in years. In the early season the tankmen took 3rd place in the Chicago Latin Tournament. The team surprised its opponents and was primarily dominant this year placing 1st in its conference and going into state seated 3rd. The team completed their season with a record of 10 and 2, finishing 5th in state losing in a grueling battle to Glenbrook North.

The team consisted of three Seniors — Co-captains

Gary Connelly and Mark Kish plus Joe Leber who were aided by Juniors Mike Krupa, Tony Prokes, Joe Ozimek, Jeremy Walsh, and David Zahn. These players will be a great asset to next year's team accompanied by two Sophomores — Jim Lynch who is fine goalkeeper, and Jason Purzunski, an experienced player.

The next season should prove promising considering 5 of the 7 starters are returning to their places in the field. With the addition of new players moving up from the Frosh/Soph level, the team should have plenty of capable replacements. Most of the starters and some of the alternates worked hard to improve their game over the summer.

Two of the players were honored by being chosen for the All-State Water Polo team. Senior Mark Kish was chosen for the second All-State team while Junior Joe Ozimek, along with being awarded team MVP was chosen as an Honorable Mention.

Practice does make perfect

Tennis, an often overlooked sport here at St. Pat's is in fact one of our best. The varsity team's outstanding 10-1 record was achieved through very hard work. Sophomore Robert Jimenez won conference, Luca Serra finished 2nd at second singles, and Tony Strzalka third at third singles. "We have a very good group of student athletes and I expect continued improvement," commented Coach Joe Schmidt. As MVP Robert Jimenez said, "This team's key to success was their ability to work and practice hard to make up for other team's greater ability." According to Coach Schmidt, "the tennis season is very enjoyable because of the competitiveness of the players and their excellent attitude toward high school athletics." Not to be overshadowed by the varsity, the Frosh-Soph team coached by Mr. Chuck Schmidt finished the season with an impressive 7-5 record.

As the new school year began, more than one million high school juniors and seniors across the nation prepared to participate in the ACT Assessment Program.

The program consists of four academic tests that measure educational development and a detailed questionnaire that collects information relevant to educational and career planning, and is recommended or required by more than 2,700 Colleges and scholarship programs.

The registration fee for the test was $10.50, with late registration being an additional $10.00. The ACT was administered at St. Patrick H.S. on April 11, 1987 with registration deadline on March 13, 1987. It takes about three hours to complete the four ACT examinations in English, Mathematics, Social Studies, and Natural Sciences.

Colleges use information from the ACT Program for academic advising, admissions counseling, course sectioning and placement, student services, and institutional research. ACT assessment reports are sent to students, their high school counselors, and only those institutions and agencies specifically designated by the student. ENOUGH SAID

IN A WORD

Students need something more than the daily routine of trudging from class to class, and that's where organizations come in. In a word, they provide an outlet as well as a learning experience that includes fun without the pressures and deadlines of the class. Rarely does anyone go through four years of high school without joining at least one organization.

This can probably be attributed to the wide variety of clubs to meet the wide variety of student interests. And, if by some odd chance no organization meets a student's interests, one can always begin his own. As a result, organizations play a key role in the life of any high school student.

Lack Of Participation By Students

Spells Doom For The Future of The Yearbook.

The yearbook is one of the best forms of saving life. Memories can be rekindled even after many years through the pictures and articles highlighting major aspects of the past. It is quite enjoyable to see the different fads and styles of an age gone by. The yearbook saves life by freezing moments in time for all to later enjoy. Changes can be seen in the pictures as the years progress of the once adolescent freshman to the mature senior. The yearbook is a special collection of rememberances to be enjoyed forever.

Throughout most of the year, the yearbook staff was carried mainly by three seniors. The lack of participation by students ailed the publication of the book. During mid-year a few underclassmen joined the staff; those who did were taught the tricks of the trade. Experience was gained through the many journalism and yearbook workshops and the endless hours of writing copy and designing layouts.

During most of the year, production was very slow. This may be due to the fact that the editors were hit with a touch of senioritis. Many events occurred throughout the year, occupied considerable amounts of time, as did part time jobs. New moderators Mr. Doug Muir and Mr. James Palmere also needed to adjust to their new positions and responsibilities.

Another consequence of the rather lengthy production of the book was the delay of implementing the new computerized system until next year. This new efficient way of creating a yearbook is a far cry from the traditional manual method which takes more time to accomplish the same goal.

In a word, the yearbook has gone through hard times. But the dedication of the staff, even through the summer months up until the end of October, helped overcome any obstacles to finally complete this concrete memory of the past year.

The Green and Gold Strives for Quality.

The newspaper is one of the most important things the student body receives. It keeps us informed of the many activities that happened during the school year. This year the Green and Gold received a new moderator, as Mrs. Fitzgerald joined the staff. The quality of the newspaper was maintained through the smooth transition of faculty moderators. According to Mrs. Fitzgerald, the primary purpose of the newspaper is to provide the student body with news on the school community. The quality of the newspaper was heightened, as many of the students attended a journalism workshop at Ball State University. This year there were twenty-five well trained and more dedicated students working on, and improving the newspaper. According to Mrs. Fitzgerald, "The success of the Green and Gold is due to the hard work and organizational skills of Bill Kuczek and Tim Lykowski. David Schultz and Jim Enstrom have also given the paper the commitment needed to produce an ever improving publication. All of the work could not have been accomplished without the support of Ron Solano and Tom Yankee. We had many talented writers this year, who will be more involved in taking on more responsibilities for the newspaper next year."

THE PHOTO CLUB CAPTURES PRECIOUS MOMENTS

Working in conjunction with the yearbook and the newspaper, the photo club has played a major role in developing young photographers. This year, the club was headed by newcomer Mr. Helmut Mayer. Although membership dwindled as compared to last year, spirit and dedication overcame the lack of members.

The Photo Club's main purpose was to teach the funda-mentals of photography. New Members learned how to develop pictures and use the camera effectively. Experienced members were provided with time and equipment to develop and practice photographic and dark room skills.

The Photo Club, as a service organization, provided quality pictures for the school administration, public relations, athletic staff, Green & Gold, and foremost, for the Shamrock. The club responded to increased demands from other organizations with high quality work.

Most importantly, the club introduced members to the world of photography and possible careers in this ever increasing field.

Hanging in the Balance

The Student Government Has a Questionable Year.

"The Student Government isn't doing anything for the students. School life is a boring routine."

"No kidding. You'd think they can come up with something new. What's the matter with our presidents?"

Those two views represent the trouble with a large part of the student body. Unrealized by many, the student government tries to incorporate spirit, pride, and interest in St. Pats, but lack of participation by the students renders the student government useless.

With four homeroom department representatives, each student has a greater chance to participate in government. The homeroom president receives ideas or suggestions from students, and filters them to the class president. If the students neglect to voice themselves, they can't complain about the government.

The student government

sponsored activities included dances, Homecoming Week festivities, and this year's Spirit Week fun. The proms and the Junior Ring ceremony were also among the governments accomplishments. Many students complained that besides the tug-O-war contests, Spirit Week was boring. But then not many students entered the Wheel of Fortune contest or wore hard hats during "Hard Hat Day." In order to make such an event a success, it needs participation. As Br. Richard put it squarely, "I just wonder if the student body cares or needs a student government."

Top Students Comprise The Prestigious NHS.

The National Honor Society, the most prestigious St. Patrick organization, bases its selection on scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Although the majority of applicants were admitted, those who were not had a choice of appealing.

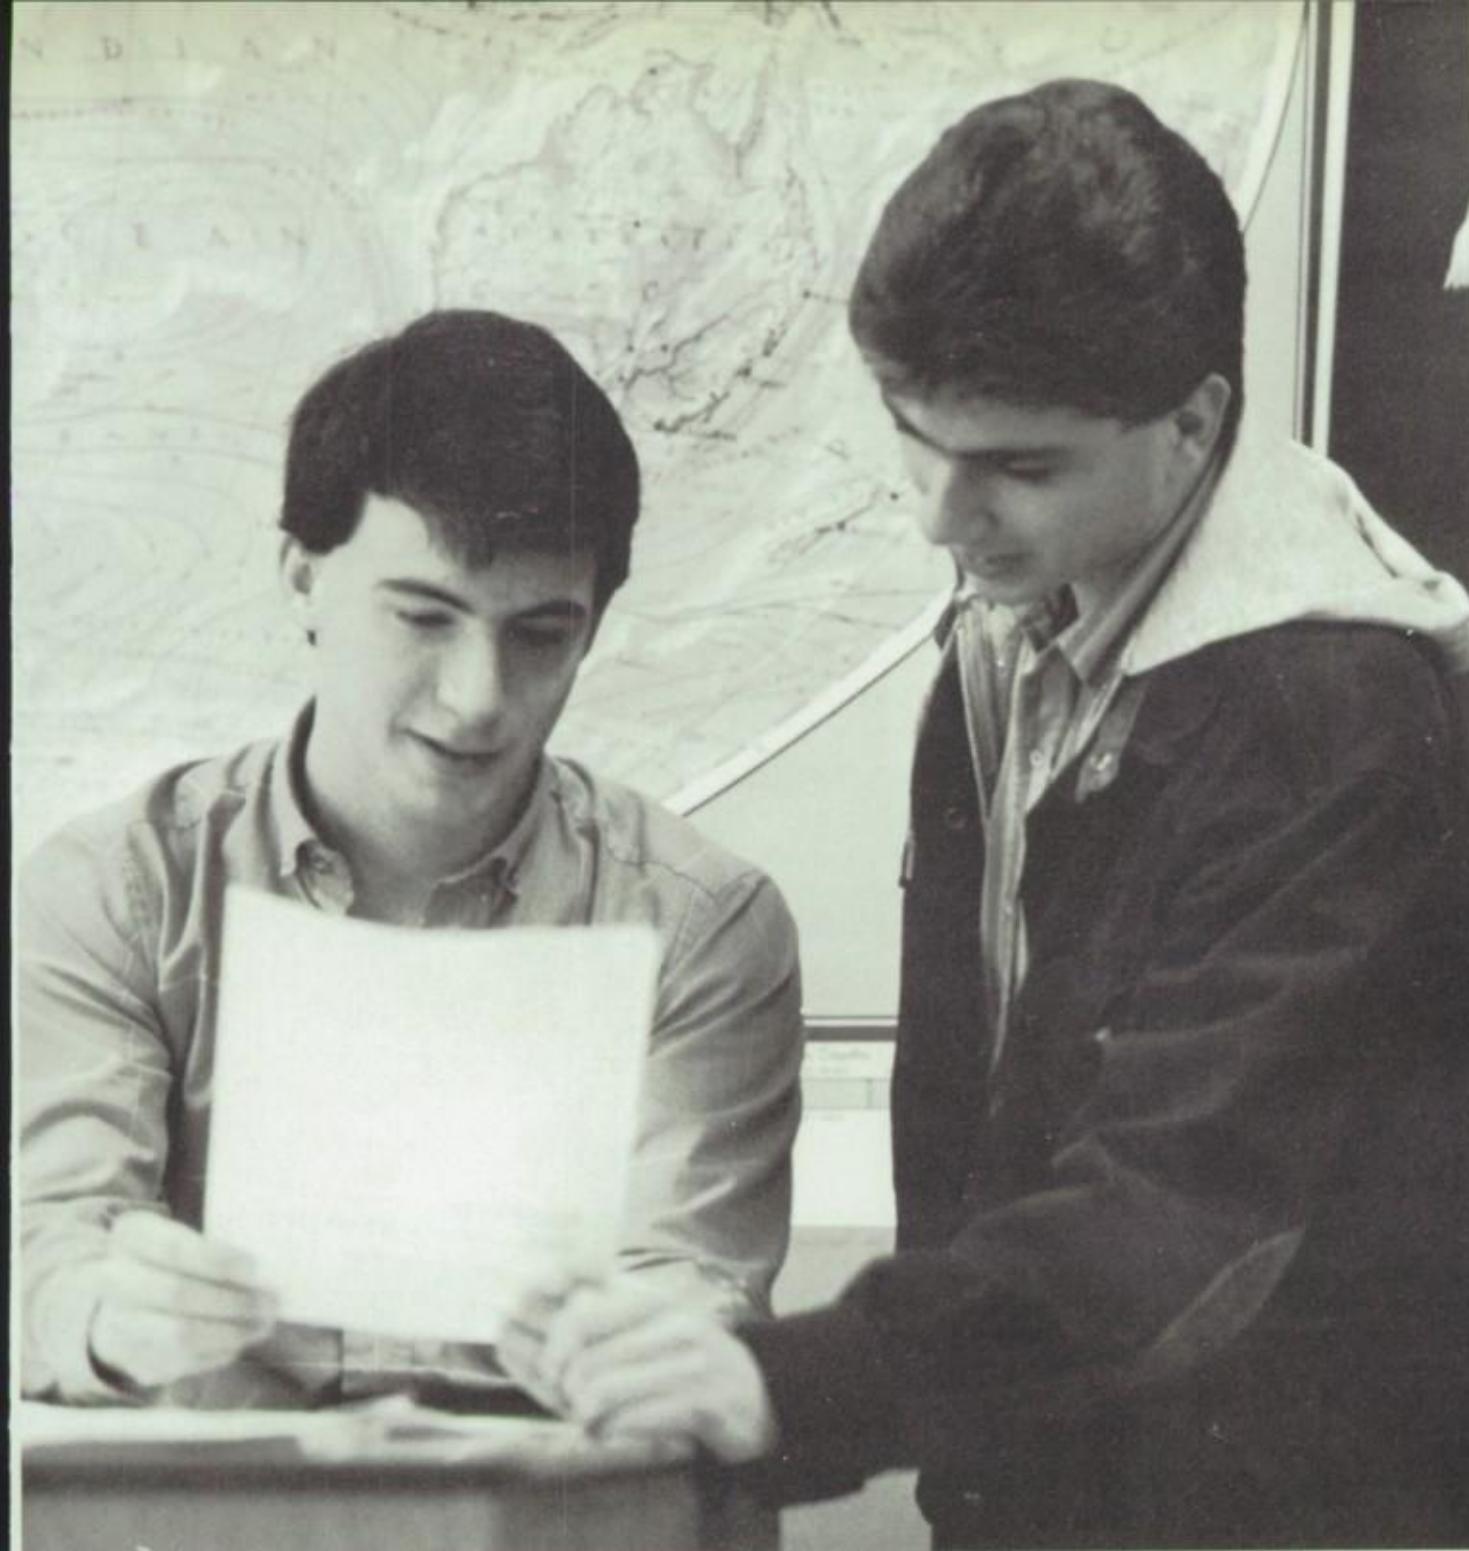

The N.H.S. served the school in a variety of ways. Tutoring before school and ushering open houses, parent-teacher conferences, and other such events, were among the club's most noticeable services.

Under the guidance of Br. John Vietoris and club president Tim Campbell, the members planned and enjoyed a collage of experiences. Military and collegiate representatives were invited to discuss future careers and financial aid, they enjoyed a gym night, and also watched the Blackhawks play a tough game in a losing effort to the New York Islanders.

The National Honor Society is an organization dedicated to serve the school as well as the community. Members were honored for their achievements during the induction ceremony on April 7th. Family and friends were on hand to witness St. Patrick's best.

Computer Club PROGRAMS FOR THE FUTURE

With computers affecting every aspect of daily life, those wanting to increase knowledge in this ever widening field were offered a variety of experiences through the Computer Club. Throughout the year, Ms. Joanne Gurdak has served as an effective moderator by balancing entertainment and education during meetings. Both of these included active use of the computer lab. With many game programs available to the club, recreation was easily attainable. Members also learned how to use graphic software, data bases, and spread sheets.

A main focus of the club was the ACSL (American Computer Science League) exams. These tests have long been a main goal of the club. However, due to the lack of an ASCL class, club members had limited success on the exams. Interest and skill levels were increased through schoolwide competition in the Olympic Computer Decathlon. The Computer Club bases its existence on promoting a better understanding and appreciation for the future of technology.

MATH CLUB SUFFERS FROM LACK OF PARTICIPATION

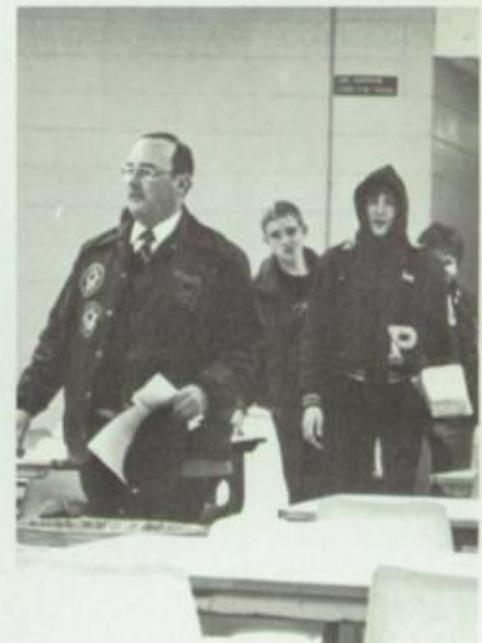

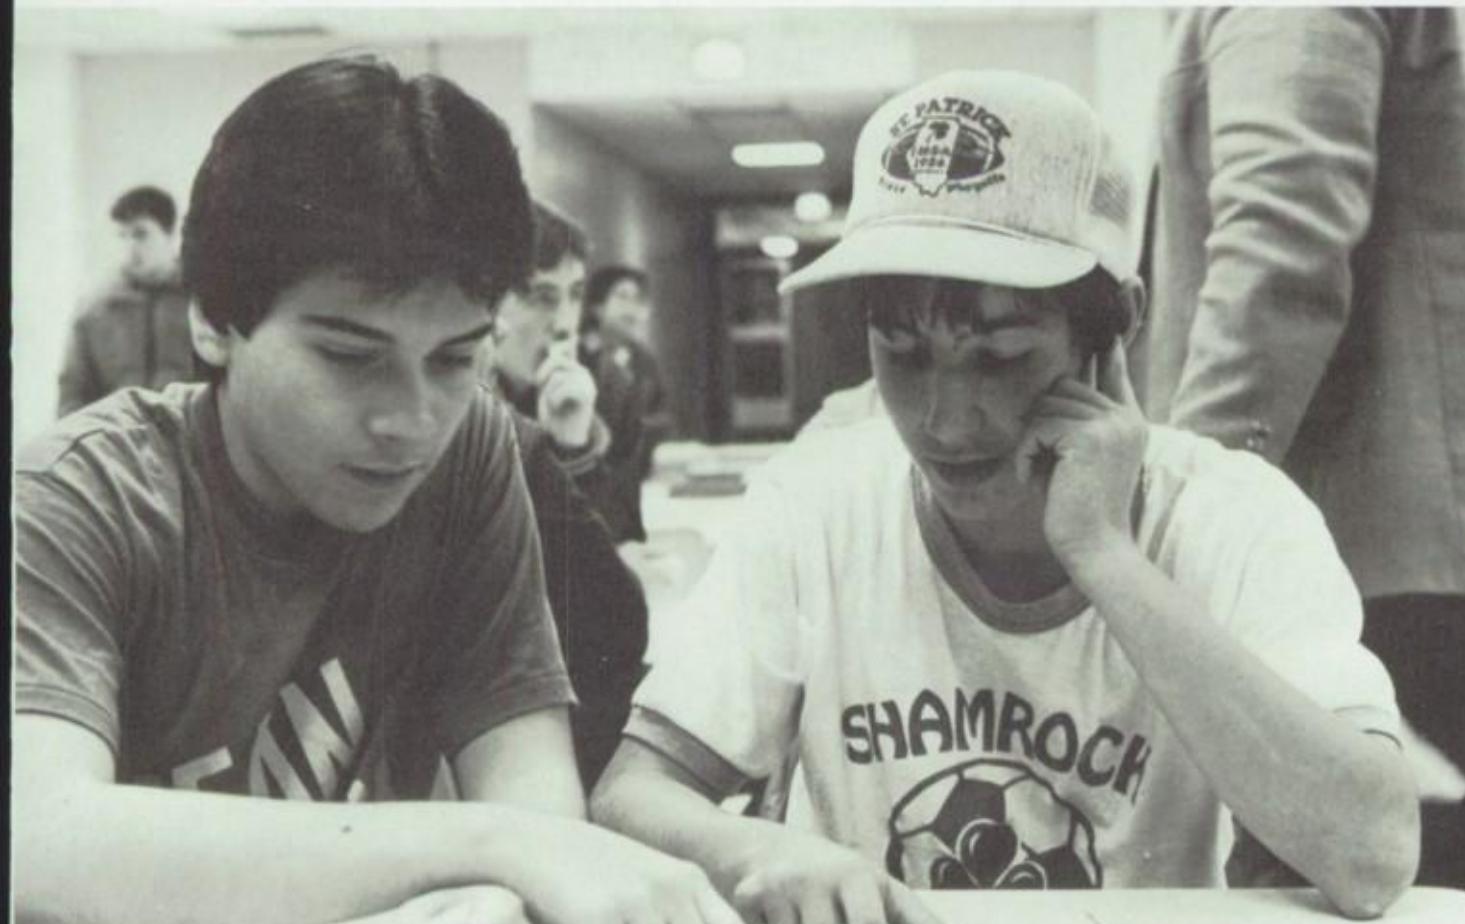

Throughout the year, twenty students met in room 105 to explore math topics not covered in the classroom. Meetings took place twice a week and prepared the members for competition in the North Suburban Math League, and various archdiocese sponsored contests. These competitions began in October and ended in March.

The limited number of participants hindered the performance of St. Patrick's in the contests. According to Mr. Muller, thirty to thirty-five active members are required in order to place better in matches. The present number, twenty, is only enough for minimal representation.

"We are always looking for strong involvement, interest, and leadership from the students that belong to the Math Club," remarked Mr. Muller. Looking optimistically to next year, we can expect a stronger and more active math club.

After five years of existence, the history club continued as strong as ever. The club's main event was the trip to Washington D.C. trip. During the St. Patrick's Day weekend, many students embarked upon a journey to our nation's capitol. Aside from visiting the White House, Mount Vernon, and various museums, the group also met with presidential candidate Paul Simon.

Other highlights of the club's year included excursions to the Chicago Historical Society, where the Frontier Era was on display; Chinatown, where a different culture was revealed; and Old Chicago, where the club strolled through the streets which made the city famous. Experiences throughout the year created a growing respect for history. Mr. Renner, with his famous bow tie, summed up the club's purpose, "I want to take the books from under their noses and let them experience history first hand, by looking at the past, present, and the future."

The view from the Washington monument is spectacular.

Make a Perfect Mate.

After many dormant seasons the chess team had finally come out of hibernation. As Mr. Ryan stated, "This was the most successful season in recent years." The team attended several tournaments. Among them were the Illinois State Tournament, the ESCC League Tournament, and the Fenwick Swiss Tournament. Three individuals rose above the crowd. Both John Eaton and Greg Bennett qualified for the individual state championship. Senior Jeff Jenkins was honored with an individual medal after finishing with a 7-1 record in state competition.

Long hours before and after school built the basic fundamentals essential to the chess club's success. The major purpose of the club was to fulfill an interest. Students were given the opportunity to compete among themselves and interscholastically. This, in turn, helped build character and a sense of sportsmanship. After finishing second in the league and seventeenth in the state, the team continues to grow and strengthen.

What rolls physics, chemistry, and biology into one? — the science club. Interested in the weird things that make the world go around? — then find out more by joining the science club. Though only four members actively keep the club running, it boasts fifteen members. To promote interest and understanding of science nobly explains the purpose of the club.

What kind of activities keep club members interested with the science club, you ask? Well, a meeting may mean that a guest speaker visits and speaks on the many career opportunities open in the science field. Sometimes the club takes an adventure to a science museum or attends a symposium. And guess who runs the annual blood drive? With the absence of the drive this year, members compensated by announcing facilities where blood donations were accepted.

Though the science club was led by president Hector Morales and vice-president Hercules Nikolaou, it suffered from lack of serious meeting attendance. To attract members, the club plans to try to involve science classes in its future trips and hopes to bring future speakers to speak to individual classes. With hopes to go on into the future, the club appeals to other students by saying, "Science is the future, and we emphasize the importance of an education in this area to promote success for America's new generation."

PARENT'S CLUB

HELPS LOWER OUR TUITION

With the cost of living increasing every year, tuition prices were maintained at a minimum through the help of the Parent's Club. This often overlooked organization has been a major factor in keeping our school alive and active.

The Parent's club had many functions which served the school community as a whole. It enabled parents to actively participate and share in their son's education.

The club's major contribution came from fund raisers throughout the year like the Corned Beef and Cabbage Dinner, year-round Bingo, and the newly reinstated Las Vegas Nights. Before the school year, Governor Thompson signed the bill in the gym during Bingo, which legalized Las Vegas type fund raisers for non-profit organizations.

In addition, the tuition guarantee program allowed students to continue their education through the financial hardships that occur after the death of a parent.

The lower tuition and the visible school improvements, which were taken for granted, can be attributed directly to the efforts of the Parent's Club.

THE CHEERLEADERS RAISE THE INTENSITY OF SHAMROCK SPORTS

Senior Sandi Gusek at halftime of the Joliet Catholic basketball game.

It has been said, at times, that the most important man in football is the 12th man, and in basketball the 7th man. Now, for those of you who don't know that in football you can only have 11 men on the field, and in basketball 6 on the court, we are talking about the Home Crowd. Players will tell you that when the team is driving down the field, hearing the crowd screaming chants such as, "Let's go Shamrocks, let's go!" will give them an extra spark, and rush of adrenaline. How, you may ask, does the crowd organize themselves to chant in unison? That job falls upon the Cheerleaders.

This elite squad of 12, from area girl's schools, has no easy job: Organize a mob of sports-crazed fanatics into a lean, mean, cheering machine, and do it during the game. How do they do it? This year's squad was formed only one week after the last basketball game of the 1985-'86 season. Posters were displayed at neighboring girls' schools advertising the three try-out dates in the St. Pats' gymnasium. The number of cheerleaders is limited to 12, and this year's team needed 8 new members (7 Seniors left, and 1 moved away) to join their ranks. This was a golden opportunity for some because once you make the team, you don't have to try out again.

In June, the new team attended a one week cheerleading camp at Northern Illinois University where, at the end of the week, they earned a trophy for being the most improved squad. During the summer they practiced twice a week from 8-10 am, and during the school year

3:30-6 pm. It is amazing that these girls give all that time toward cheerleading and receive absolutely no funding from the school itself. Money is raised through car washes or selling candy, and this year by selling Pom-Poms during homecoming week.

It is easy to take our cheerleaders for granted, but they should be commended for the excellent job they do. If you don't believe that, just take a look at our Varsity Football (p. 40) and Basketball (p. 52) team's records and think of how many close games could have been lost without the contribution of the 12th (or 7th) man.

At the football banquet, the Cheerleaders receive a round of applause in appreciation.

CULTURE CLUBS ADD SPICE TO LANGUAGE CLASS

Background in a second language helps individuals become more well rounded. Those wanting to learn more about their cultural dialect, joined one of three language clubs. The purpose of these organizations was to promote an understanding of the culture and an appreciation of the language. Meetings were held after school. During these gatherings, fundamentals of the respective languages were discussed.

The biggest event of the year, for all clubs, was the annual International Christmas Festival. As a prelude to the activities, Christmas cards in three different languages were papered along the cafeteria walls. Neighboring girls' school language clubs were invited to participate in the celebration. The main attraction of the festival was the gourmet food from each country including Spanish rice, German strudel, and French pastries. A program concerning each of the three countries' customs was presented along with folk songs which were performed by each club. Games from each culture were introduced and played, especially hitting the pinata. As in past years, the festival was a tremendous success.

In addition to all its other activities, a gym night was sponsored by the Foreign Language Department. Matches were played between opposing clubs and after the competition, pizza was served. Throughout the year, the language club members attained a greater understanding of foreign language and culture.

When all is said & done

The way a school is perceived, as well as its reputation, is to a great extent determined by the people or students attending it. Beyond the asphalt, buildings, and field, the people are the only physical aspect of the school observed by the others. In addition, they represent the heart and soul of the school. If there weren't any students to attend it, this institution would have no meaning or significance. So, when all is said and done, the students are both the school and the experience that it is.

Happy Anniversary!

Two Brothers celebrated their 25th Anniversary as Christian Brothers. Br. Thomas Dominic Vance, better known as B.T.D., entered the religious life on Aug. 30, 1961, in Glencoe, MO. Br. Galinski (also known to a few as "SAMURAI") celebrated his Silver Anniversary at Immaculate Conception Church Nov. 22nd.

Br. Galinski received his BA from Christian Brothers College in Memphis, TN, and went on to earn a MA in Religious Education from the University of Detroit as well as a MA in Counseling from St. Mary's College in Winona, MN. B.T.D. took a different educational route by receiving a B.A. in chemistry at St. Mary's College and by later earning a M.S. in chemistry from the University of Notre Dame.

Beyond teaching at St. Pat's for the last 21 years, B.T.D. also served as Basketball Moderator and is also the Director of the St. Patrick Brothers' community. Br. David, on the other hand, has served as Vice Principal and also as a teacher over his 16 years at St. Patrick's.

Team of the Week!

Just when you thought that the varsity football team won all of the awards it could, along came the "Team of the Week" award. Z-95, 7-Up, and the Kemmerer Company sponsored the "High School Team of the Week" award and St. Pats received it for the week of 10-24-86. Z-95's Brant Miller and a representative from the 7-Up company presented the award to head coach John Urban. The ceremonies were held during each of the homeroom periods throughout the day with Coach Urban citing a brief speech at each presentation. The trophy will rest in the trophy case as another reminder of the brilliant 1986-1987 season.

Conservative Chronicle

Mr. Renner's Political Systems class became more than just a class, it became a learning experience when he had students choose whether they were liberals or conservatives. At first, the antagonistic exchanges between sides weren't much, but as the semester dragged on, they became increasingly heated, especially with the emergence of the Conservative Chronicle.

This pamphlet's original purpose was to be an impartial newspaper, but after the first issue and each succeeding issue, it became increasingly blatant that it was nothing more than conservative propaganda. By the end of the semester, an issue of the Chronicle would mostly consist of attacks, some of them personal, against liberals instead of presenting the political issues.

By the last issue, the Chronicle compared everyone who didn't think as they did to hippies from the 1960's. The Chronicle might have been a platform for thought provoking ideas instead of the yellow journalism it printed.

A Mission of Peace

Mrs. Schnell, who has been teaching here for over twelve years, will be traveling to Ecuador with her husband Bradley, as a member of the Peace Corps. Mrs. Schnell joined the St. Patrick family in 1974 as a part time French teacher, and two years later started working full time as an English and French teacher. Since then, the French program has expanded, and for the last two years she has taught five French classes and has been Foreign Language Department Chairperson.

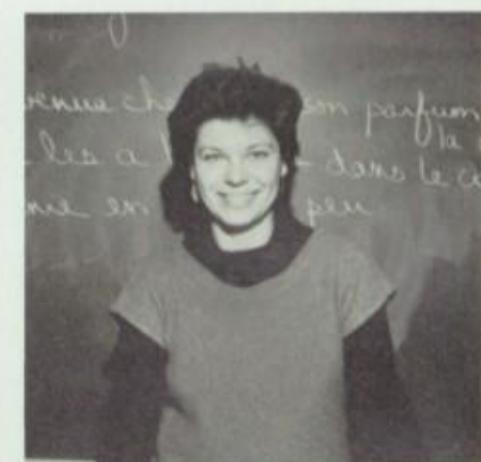

Mrs. Schnell and her husband became interested in the Peace Corps last summer, so they decided to submit applications and see what type of response they would get. In October, the Peace Corps office sent a description of a program in Ecuador that suited her husband's qualifications perfectly. Mrs. Schnell and her husband had traveled in South America before, and both were fascinated by the culture, so they decided to go with this program.

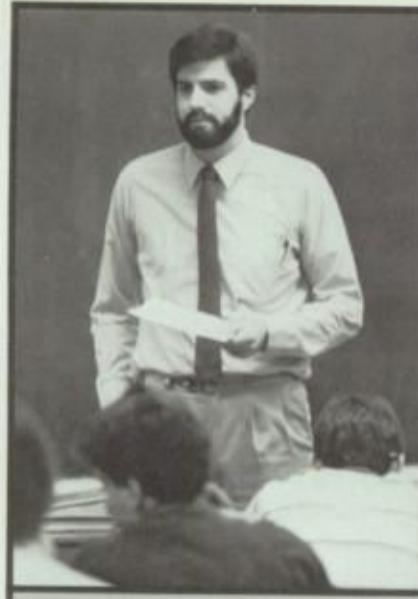

After a four day orientation in Miami, she and her husband will be traveling to Quito, Ecuador. There they will take part in a three month training program with intensive work in language and cultural skills. While in training, they will be living with an Ecuadorean family, who will help them with some of the other aspects of living there.

Towards the end of summer, after the training, the Schnell's will be given their assignment and will either remain in Quito or be sent to another city or town. As Mrs. Schnell stated, "Rumors that I will be living in the jungle are totally unfounded (I hope!)." Her stay will last for two years, with an option to stay another two if she and her husband so wish.

While teaching here at St. Pat's, Mrs. Schnell has had many fond memories. "The hardest thing about leaving St. Pat's is saying good-bye to my students and friends. Every May is difficult for me because my French IV graduates go on: students whom I've taught for four years and gotten to be fond of. This year I'm the one that is leaving, and my sense of loss is multiplied by four. The faculty and staff at this school are fantastic. Saying good-bye to them is too painful to think about. I will miss everyone tremendously," said Mrs. Schnell. Her services here at St. Pat's have been appreciated by all, and the entire St. Patrick's community will miss her deeply.

BIO

Name: Donald Xavier Nekrosius. Date of Birth: March 6, 1948. Place of Birth: Chicago, Ill. Marital Status: Happily married — 17 years. Grammar school attended: Immaculate Conception. High school attended: St. Ignatius College Prep. College attended: Northwestern University, Chicago State U. = BSEd, U. of Michigan = MA. Interests and Hobbies:

Reading, gardening, pets (fish and birds), correspondence. Classes taught: A.P. English, Humanities I & II, speech. Extra-curricular activities: Intramural bowling, writing and speech contests. Person you most admire: Pete Seeger; the folk singer for his artistic writing and performing accomplishments, as well as his political courage and stamina. Favorite high school memory: Freshman year Latin class and the energized priest who taught it (Fr. Florian Zimecki, S.J.N. deceased). Funniest high school memory: As a freshman cheerleader I was leading a basketball crowd through the letters of the school name and yelled them out in incorrect order — I melted in embarrassment. Worst high school memory: The moment in religion class when the announcement came over the p.a. that President Kennedy had been shot. Between that first announcement and the one telling of his death felt like a long and unhappy lifetime. Why did you become a teacher: I love language, literature, and people. Favorite movie: A Thousand Clowns. Favorite book: Gunter Grass' A Tin Drum. Favorite musical artist: The Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Favorite sport: Playing almost any kind of catch. Favorite food: Chocolate, fresh fish, homemade bread. What kind of car do you own: 1972 Oldsmobile. If you had one wish, what would it be: For the peace, sufficiency, and self-realization that will make the world a happy place.

BIO

Date of Birth: October 12, 1950. Place of Birth: Oak Park, IL. Marital Status: Married. Grammar school attended: St. Gertrude. High school attended: Holy Cross. College attended: St. Ambrose. Interests and Hobbies: Weight training, Bible study, reading, music. Classes taught: English II P.H. Extra-curricular activities: Yearbook. Person you most admire, and why: Jesus Christ, because he led such a brave life. Funniest high school memory: At graduation; all the graduates had tossed their hats into the air. Immediately, the principal stomped to the microphone and in a packed gym reprimanded everyone. Worst high school memory: Receiving an "F" in Phys. Ed. My first report card freshman year. My teacher wanted a book report on the textbook and I had not heard the assignment. Why did you become a teacher: Because of my freshman History teacher at Holy Cross who made history so real, exciting, and interesting; he had his classroom walls covered by great portraits of historical people. Favorite movie: Time to Run. Favorite book: The Bible. Favorite musical artist: Harvest. Favorite sports: Jogging, weight training. Favorite food: Pizza. What kind of car do you own: 1984 Honda Civic Hatchback. What was the worst job you ever had and why: Working as a gas station attendant. The manager would always short change my records and then deduct the difference from my paycheck. What are your plans, if any, for the future: First, complete requirements for my Illinois State Teaching Certificate. Second, begin work on a certificate to teach in private Christian schools. Third, to begin studies toward a Master's degree in linguistics.

Yearbook Wins Award!

The direct result of hard work, paying attention to minute details, and care in general, this yearbook's first 16 pages, the color section, was recognized by a national publishing company, Taylor Publishing Co., as one of the top twenty in the nation. Special gratitude and thanks can be awarded for the combined efforts of Gary Sotelo, Carl Urbinati, John Kuczaj, and Alex Rzepka who worked tirelessly to meet their first deadline despite a lack of interest and the disadvantage of not having a staff at the time.

BIO

Name: Rudolph Michael Presslak. Date of Birth: February 22, 1949. Place of Birth: Chicago, IL. Marital Status: Happily Married. Grammar school attended: Portage Park. High school attended: St. Mel. College attended: DePaul (BA English), Northeastern (MA Guidance and Counseling). Interests and Hobbies: Music, doing things with my family, going to Cub games.

Extra-curricular activities: Head Baseball Coach, Senior Moderator. People you most admire: My parents and wife. My parents gave me the freedom to be myself and do what I wanted to do. They steered me in the right direction, even though at the time I maybe didn't realize it. I admire my wife for the job she does at home with our kids. What she has to give up to raise them is phenomenal. She also is a "Coach's Wife." Putting up with late hours, dealing with players' parents who call the house when I'm not in, and just putting up with me in general. I'm sure I don't tell her enough what she means to me and the kids. Favorite high school memory: I enjoyed all four years of high school. Most of my memories are good ones, especially the ones revolving around the different activities and the friendships established there. Worst high school memory: "Volunteering" to come in on Saturdays to "help" Br. George Wagner wash the school bus. Favorite movies: A Night at the Opera, Casablanca. Favorite books: The Catcher in the Rye, The Grapes of Wrath. Favorite musical artists: Beatles; Crosby, Stills, Nash, & Young; Dire Straits. Favorite sport: Baseball. Favorite food: Pizza and burgers. What kind of car do you own: Chevy Nova. If you had one wish what would it be: That my children grow up strong and healthy with a good sense of what's right and wrong.

honest and sincere — The two qualities I admire most. Favorite high school memory: Graduation day. Funniest high school memory: Graduation day. Worst high school memory: Graduation day. What is the funniest St. Pat's story that you have been involved in: My first year at Pat's I was determined not to let any wise-guy pull the wool over my eyes. So, when in the first week or so of school, a student came into class late, I looked immediately at the time printed on the admit slip. (No fool this rookie!) It read 9:10. It was now 9:30. "Where have you been for the last 20 minutes," said I. "I came directly here from the attendance office," replied the meek, soft spoken lad. Now I had him! "I may be new here, but I'm no fool! This slip says 9:10 and it is now 9:30. You have been somewhere for 20 minutes." "But" — "Don't but me — where have you been!" "But Mr. Renner — that's the date — today is Sept. 10! Here's the time stamp — 9:26!" "Oh!", said I, "well sit down and don't let it happen again!" Favorite movie: Citizen Kane. Favorite book: Grapes of Wrath. Favorite musical artist: Hot Frogs Jumpin'. Favorite sport: Baseball. What kind of car do you own: Cavalier. What was the worst job you ever had: Working for my uncle, spray painting primer on giant steel parts. It was dirty, boring, and unhealthy. If you had one wish what would it be: To have five more wishes.

Playoff Fever hits St. Pat's

Playoff fever hit St. Pat's this season with the football team having a sensational season. After going 8-1 in the regular season and sharing the conference championship, the football team entered the playoff picture, slated to play 9-0 Lake Park. The anxious and excited players encountered one obstacle — cramming seven practice days into three, which often times creates problems.

An exciting first half, with both teams scoring, kept the fans glued to their seats. Problems arose when a recovered fumble by St. Pats, couldn't be taken in for any points. After that, Lake Park took over, dominating the line of scrimmage and picking apart the Shamrock pass defense. As the final seconds ticked off the clock, the playoff hype reached its end with the final score Lake Park 38, and The Shamrocks 21. As head coach John Urban put it, "The only bad thing about the playoffs is that if you lose, there is no tomorrow." Nonetheless the season will be etched in the minds of Shamrock fans for quite some time.

The team, as a whole, played terrific all season long. Eddie Thomas, Brian Hayes, Chuck Ward, and Curtis Lipsey all played exceptionally well, but all the players needed to perform to their ability in order to produce a winning season.

QB Eddie Thomas just couldn't spark the Shamrocks.

BIO

Name: Dan Rolfs. Date of Birth: October 29, 1941. Place of Birth: Oak Park, IL. Marital Status: Married. Grammar school attended: Argon and Sutro, San Francisco. High school attended: George Washington H.S., San Francisco. College attended: University of California, Berkeley. Interests and Hobbies: Tennis, piano, bicycling, foreign languages. Classes Taught: French I, II, III, IV. Extracurricular activities: French club. Favorite high school memory: I first met my wife in my Junior year of high school. We had a lot of fun together riding around on my motor scooter (we later got married in college). Funniest high school memory: One night a date of mine (not my wife) was locked out of her house for some reason, so she slept on the couch at my house. My parents were very surprised to find her there in the morning, and when they asked me about it, I didn't remember anything for a while. Why did you become a teacher: I love to take fairly complicated things and break them down into their parts so as to offer a clear explanation (such as in grammar). I love foreign languages, and sharing that with others. Favorite movie: When Worlds Collide or Forbidden Planet. Favorite sport: Tennis. Favorite food(s): Roast beef, tacos, Chinese food. What kind of car do you own: Honda Civic. What was the worst job you ever had and why: In high school I worked one summer as a manual laborer for a contractor. It was the hardest physical work I've ever done, though I enjoyed it for one summer. What are your plans, if any, for the future: Future plans include writing another book — maybe on the Romance Languages — and traveling to all of the countries whose languages I have studied.

Cheerleaders Capture award

Although Michael Jordan stole the show against the Atlanta Hawks Thursday April 23 in front of a sold out crowd, the St. Patrick cheerleaders stole the citywide cheerleading championship from fifteen other high schools.

The winning routine consisted of "floor chairs" — a series of gymnastics and jumps — and vocal cheers. What amazes people and the coach, Kelly Nyhan, is that the seniors finished in February and a new team worked an hour-and-a-half, two times a week, in preparation.

Members attending the competition at the stadium included team captains Stellar Kim and Sally Paloian, Dawn Wodarski, Renee Borin, Armelle Capulong, Mary Zelasco, Cathy Juliano, Gloria Panico, and Gioia Giannotti.

Name: Jeffrey R. Troxell. Date of Birth: March 31, 1954. Place of Birth: Chicago, IL. Marital Status: Single. Grammar school attended: St. Monica, Immaculate Conception. High school attended: St. Patrick. College attended: Christian Brothers College, DePaul, Northeastern Illinois University, Purdue University, Northern Illinois University ('84, MA Educ. Admin.). Interests and Hobbies: Cooking, racquetball, fishing, working around the house. Classes taught: Pre-calculus (H), Algebra II/Trig (A), Geometry (B), Computer Literacy. Extra-curricular activities: Asst. varsity football coach. Person(s) you most admire: My parents — they have been the most influential people in my life. Funniest high school memory: After a football game in Woodstock, IL, the team bus left without me — got a ride to pick up my dad's car — got pulled over — policeman gave me an escort back to St. Pat's. Why did you become a teacher: I've been associated with the Brothers of the Christian Schools for 19 years. As a student I was always impressed by their mission of education and their commitment to quality and excellence. The lay teachers hired by the H.S. and college further impressed me with much of the same commitment and willful sacrifice. Favorite movie: Lawrence of Arabia. Favorite book: The Odyssey. Favorite musical artist: The Doors. Favorite sport: Football. Favorite food: Steak, baked potato, salad. What kind of car do you own: 1981 Ford Escort. What was the worst job you ever had, and why: Senior year summer, I cleaned offices at DuPont after hours. I felt like a maid, having to clean up other people's messes. My boss was really into it — took him 3 hrs. to do a 1½ hour job.

The Brothers' Best Friend

Sitting in Brother John Vietoris' history class as a freshman and again as a junior, my eyes often gazed into the courtyard to behold an animal running rampant. The beast chased squirrels up trees and then trotted to the east end of the courtyard to feast on Kibbles n' Bits or something of that sort. Once in a while, it would poke his head through the small open windows on the first floor. Not risking ridicule from my fellow students, I decided to drive the matter of the mysterious dog to the one person who knew the most — Brother Konrad!

Peering into the dimly lit office, my eyes beheld Br. Konrad searching through a file. I mustered enough courage to peep, "Brother, may I ask you a couple of questions about a certain Siberian Huskie?"

With an amazed expression and a smile on his face he replied, "You mean Dirk? Ask away."

Surprised by his tone, I asked the obvious question, "Who owns Dirk?"

"I adopted Dirk nearly six years ago on a small island, Beaver Island, in Lake Michigan off Traves City, Michigan. The Brothers keep a retreat house on the island and I knew someone there who wanted to give away Dirk."

"So now Dirk lives here at St. Pats. I suppose he is fed well and receives some good baths," I said.

He replied, "He eats well, alright. Dirk prefers cookies and ice cream to his dog food and seldom turns down an offer. But Dirk detests baths."

I casually mentioned, "The courtyard provides plenty of room for exercise, I suppose."

"Of course," he answered. "Dirk chases squirrels as he chased deer on Beaver Island. He especially loves winter as any Siberian Husky. The spring and summer cook him in his grey, black, white, and faintly brown fur coat; but the winter and fall rejuvenate his desire to run."

Figuring I knew plenty except for one thing, I decided to ask bluntly, "Isn't Dirk interested in a girlfriend in the prime of his youth?"

Brother Konrad looked at me and responded, "Ask Dirk yourself."

Later that day, I approached Dirk who just finished playing with his birthday bone. October 29 marks Dirk's birthday. After petting the six year old husky, I mustered enough courage to ask, "Are you interested in girls?"

I swear that I saw a glimmer in his eyes and a human smile cross his face. He turned around and trotted through the courtyard as the Dirk we all know — or do we?

As the year ends . . . A promising New Order begins

With the dawn of a new age comes the dawn of a new hierarchy at St. Pat's. The biggest step, of course, being Br. Konrad becoming President of the school, Joe Schmidt becoming Principal, and Chuck Schmidt becoming Vice-Principal.

These drastic changes were suggested to the school in a Christian Brother directive in order to allow the Principal to spend more time on the school itself and create a new position, President, to let somebody else concentrate solely on long range goals and outside funding. However, these changes weren't limited only to the top three positions, a new look or restructurization occurred all the way down to the different department heads also. These changes are hoped to improve the quality and enhance the learning atmosphere inside, as well as outside, the classroom.

Our new Principal.

the museums of the Smithsonian Institution composed the miscellaneous activities of the journey to the East. The number of photographs taken by St. Pat's "professional" photographers put Japanese tourists to shame.

Those students without any historical interest probably think the guys were bored to craziness. In actuality, the group received much free time to do many other things. With a late curfew, many of the party animals either played cards while chomping down Domino's pizza and guzzling Coke or went crazy at some of the parties on the other floors of the hotel. Others derangedly fed quarters into video games or swam in the indoor pool. Some cruised the nearby malls, while others played James Bond and ran rampant throughout the elegant hotel.

At the end of the trip, surprisingly, both Mr. Renner and Br. John survived. As Mr. Renner summed up the experience, "The group knew its bounds — it had a good time while learning something."

A New Year Brings New Faces

There is always something enlivening about beginning a new school year. When students began classes at St. Patrick H.S. on Monday Aug. 25, 1986, 310 new freshman faces came along with the entering class of 1990.

Faculty members, also, saw new faces among their ranks when 9 persons were inducted at a faculty meeting. Brother Konrad Diebold, FSC, welcomed 7 instructors, a teaching intern, and an office attendant to their work for the 1986-1987 school year.

Mrs. Edith Biegler Vandervoort came from the University of Illinois-Chicago, and teaches German. Mr. Paul Caruso, a graduate of Notre Dame University, teaches Sophomore, and upper level Biology classes. He has followed advanced studies in biology and foreign study in France. Sister Terence Gilbert, who holds an

M.Ed. in Secondary Administration from St. Louis University, has assumed duties in the Administrative Offices.

Miss Victoria Lee came to St. Patrick High School for her internship and practicum in the Mathematics Department. She regularly attends North Park College. Mr. Sid Manalo brought 14 years of teaching experience back to the classroom classes. Mrs. Lisa Marsan, formerly a teaching assistant at the Illinois Institute of Technology, teaches Physics and Mathematics to upper division students.

Mr. Douglas Muir came to St. Pat's from Cathedral High School in Chicago, and teaches Junior religion and American History Classes. Mr. Muir earned his degree at Mundelein College. Mr. James Palmere has taught in Leyden Township High District 212. He holds a B.A. in English and a B.A. in History from St. Ambrose College in Davenport, Iowa. He teaches Sophomore and Senior English classes. Mr. Peter Zimmerman, who matriculated at the university of Wyoming earning a M.A.T. in History, taught for several years at St. Patrick H.S., as well as assisting in coaching basketball for the school prior to entering business. His return to teaching is appreciated at St. Pat's where he teaches Sophomores, and coaches the Freshman Basketball team. Mr. Rolfs came to St. Pat's at the beginning of the second semester replacing Mrs. Schnell (see pg. 117) as French Teacher.

L to R: Mr. Caruso, Mr. Manalo, Mrs. Marsan, Br. Konrad, Miss Lee, Mr. Palmere, Sr. Terence, Mrs. Vandervoort. Missing: Mr. Muir, Mr. Zimmerman, Mr. Rolfs.

The yearbook editors would like to acknowledge Stan Lee and Marvel Comics for originating the saying, "Enough Said," that we have used as the theme of this book.

Editors' Acknowledgements

It was a long, and at times, seemingly endless road but we did it. Many people say this book came out late, but we like to think it has come out ahead of its time. For most of 12 months, only four people worked on this book, and with each having jobs elsewhere, it was difficult — NO, IMPOSSIBLE — to meet our deadlines. Creating a yearbook takes a group effort — a large group, and we didn't have it this year. Most of these pages were completed in the month of August. As we write these words, the 1987-88 school year has already started, and we have only 90 pages completed. We have tried to create a quality book — even with the time limitations — and hope we have done just that. The only measure of our success will be this year's memories rekindled in years to come.

We would like to thank the people who assisted us throughout the year.

Thanks to Joe Donati, Mark Rzotkiewicz, and Earl Arndt, who joined our staff in the middle of the school year and did their best to alleviate the work load. Thanks also to Leo Grazi-ano, who helped us finish pages at the end of the summer.

Thank You Steve Warmowski, who did his best to provide us with pictures when we needed them the most.

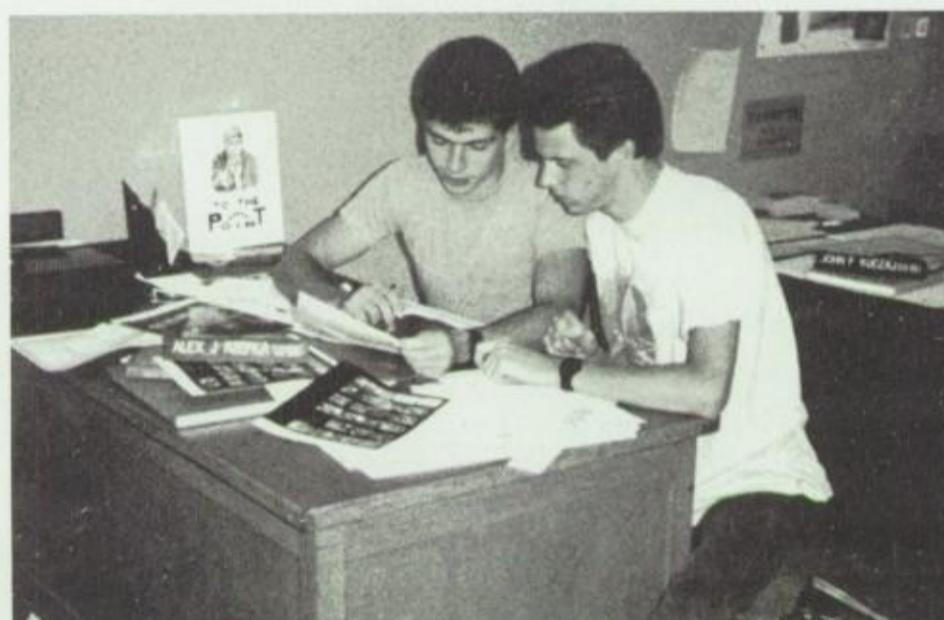

Special Thanks to Br. David Pieters, whose press releases made up the bulk of our mini-mag (see pgs. 72-79).

Thanks to Mr. Ken Nemsick, representative of Taylor Publishing Co. who helped answer our questions and iron out our problems.

Thank You Mr. Doug Muir, our Adviser and Director of Production, who sacrificed most of his summer to keep order in the Yearbook office.

Finally, a Thank You to all the students and faculty who cooperated with us in photographing and interviewing them. May the memories in this book keep you happy for years to come.

— Alex and John.

Enough Said.

Congratulations! You have come to the point where the whole book must be wrapped up. There is a flaw in that thinking though, because it is nearly impossible to wrap up a 160 page book in 3 pages. This could be done by 3 uninterrupted pages of copy, but reading that would be as fun as final exams were. It is our belief that Enough has been Said about the year. Not to say that it was a bad year to talk about, but we feel that a yearbook should talk just enough to trigger your memories of the year.

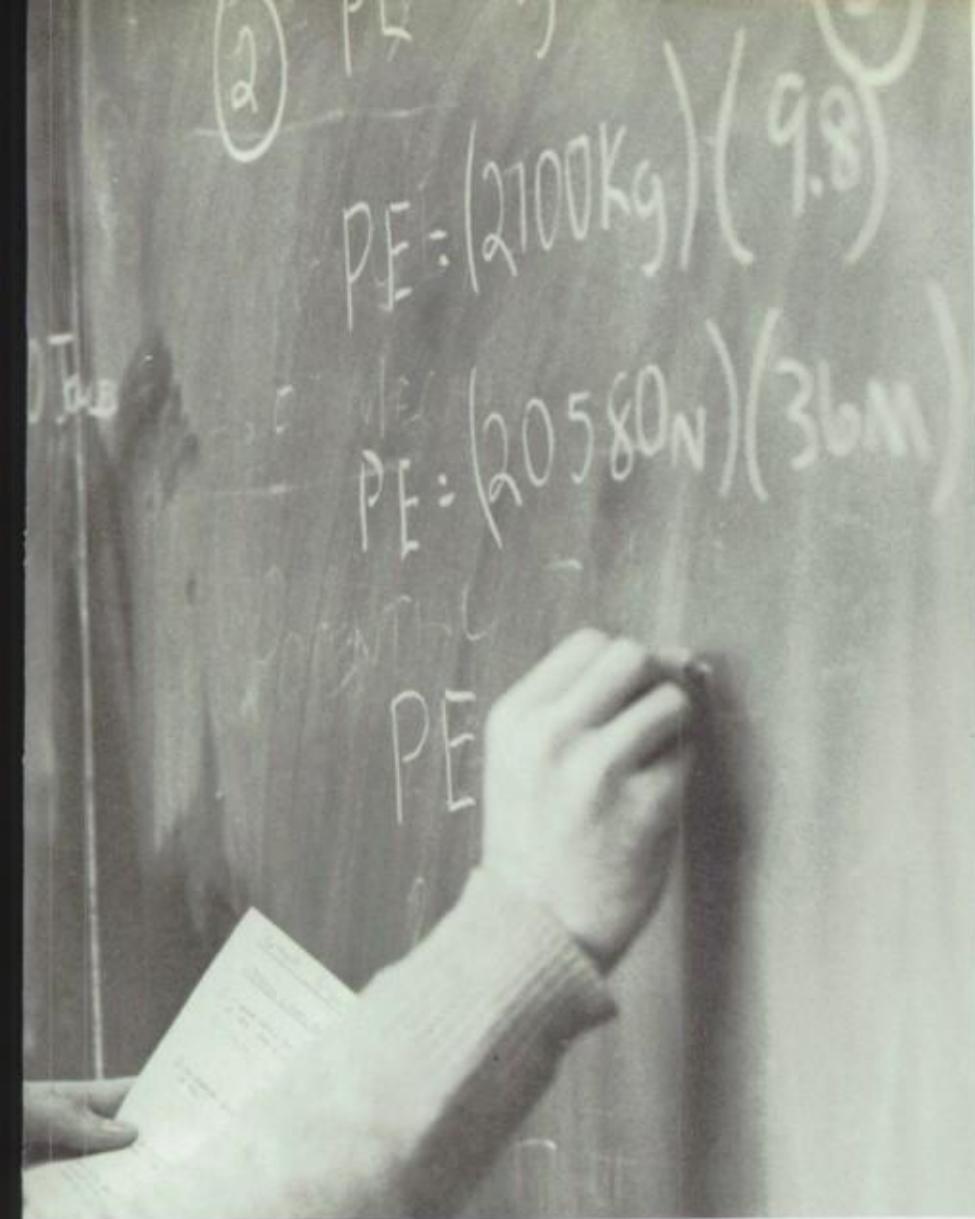

In order to keep this year and yearbook special, you should not overdose yourself with memories. The first thing you did when you received this book was find your name in the index, and see what pages you were on. DON'T WORRY — that action was completely normal, but your next step should be to slowly page through this book — cover to cover remembering the school year. When you have reached page 160, put the book down and take a break. Think of it this way, some students don't read 160 pages in the course of one school year (Cliff notes do not count). Put the book away for safe keeping, and in years to come, flip through it when you need to cheer yourself up.

Well, Enough Said about that, on to the Closing . . .

Remember when the Football team had to sleep in the gym on Oct. 31 in preparation for the Marist game?

Br. Konrad familiarizes Joe Schmidt with the equipment a Principal uses everyday.

Carl Kocur correctly computes a Physics equation.

A rain-soaked Sandi Gusek looks on as the Football team easily defeats Holy Cross.
